

Lobbyists Battle Windfall Profits Curb

WASHINGTON (AP) — The fate of emergency energy legislation appears in doubt as the Senate heads toward a vote on a motion to send the bill back to conference with the House.

A final Senate vote on the bill was scheduled for this afternoon. But before that, Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., was expected to offer the motion to recommit the measure to conference.

Senate Interior Chairman Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., who last week predicted passage of the bill, said Monday he doesn't know whether the move to recommit the bill will succeed. The bill would give President Nixon the authority to order gasoline rationing.

Nelson's motion is expected to include instructions to drop a controversial provision designed to prevent the oil industry from earning windfall profits.

Jackson blamed the effort to block the bill on "intensive lobbying" by the petroleum industry and the White House against the windfall profits provision. The industry and the administration reportedly organized a filibuster in December by Republicans and oil-state senators that prevented passage of the bill then.

The bill's opponents gained new strength Monday when Nelson, a northern liberal known to favor a windfall profits tax, announced his opposition to the bill on the grounds that it is unworkable. Nelson also objects to provisions in the bill that would suspend clean air requirements in order to permit the burning of dirtier fuels.

Jackson, the chief architect of the bill, has acknowledged that the windfall profits section is not entirely satisfactory but has insisted on keeping it in as a prod to Congress to pass new tax measures later in the session.

Elsewhere on Capitol Hill, John Sawhill, deputy director of the Federal Energy Office, said the price of domestic oil should be held within the range of $6 to $8 a barrel.

Without indicating how this could be done, Sawhill said some method must be found "of capping the price."

He said that otherwise the price of domestic oil will continue to creep toward that set by the Arab oil nations.

Current domestic oil prices range from $5.25 for a barrel of oil under price controls to more than $10 under uncontrolled prices.

Federal energy chief William E. Simon, also appearing before a unit of the Senate Government Operations Committee, predicted that the country could handle a 15 per cent gasoline shortage without rationing.

Simon promised to provide adequate advance notice if rationing becomes necessary.

Meanwhile, Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas accused the oil companies of creating the energy crisis for their own profit, with the cooperation of governmental bureaucracy.

Speaking at the University of Mississippi, Douglas said, "Our problem is a fuel monopoly. The oil industry keeps the supply of oil and gas low enough to boost prices and makes sure all other energy sources are on the bottom."

Ohio Political Candidates Play Musical Chairs

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— Prospective candidates for statewide office continue to play political musical chairs with just a little more than a week remaining until the Feb. 6 filing deadline.

One Republican dropped out of the gubernatorial race Monday and another planned to jump in today, while a Democratic state representative decided against seeking re-election to run for secretary of state.

State Rep. Norman Murdock, R-21 Cincinnati, announced he was withdrawing as a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor, saying he believed former Gov. James Rhodes was unbeatable in the May primary.

Murdock, who said he will seek re-election to the legislature, pledged to support whoever wins the GOP nomination, but added he thought Rhodes is a sure loser in next fall's general election. The Democratic nominee is expected to be incumbent Gov. John Gilligan.

Meanwhile, state Rep. Charles E. Fry, R-75 Springfield, scheduled a series of airport news conferences around Ohio today to offer his candidacy for the GOP gubernatorial nomination.

The 57-year-old Fry has been a legislator since 1963 and was speaker pro tem of the Ohio House during the 1971-72 session. He unsuccessfully challenged Rep. Charles F. Kurfess, R-83 Perrysburg, for minority leader last year.

Entering the secretary of state race was state Rep. Robert W. Jaskulski, D-11 Garfield Heights, who expressed confidence his candidacy would strengthen the Democratic ticket in Cuyahoga County.

Jaskulski, 47, told newsmen he decided to run partly because Cleveland Mayor Ralph J. Perk will be on the GOP primary election ticket. Perk is seeking the Republican nomination for the U.S. Senate.

Jaskulski said he believed he could attract ethnic voters to the Democratic ticket to offset Perk's strengthening of the GOP ticket.

Other Democrats seeking the secretary of state nomination include state Commerce Director Dennis Shaul, John F. Kennedy of Cleveland and Beverly Ann Bingle of Columbus.

Incumbent Ted W. Brown is the only announced Republican candidate.

Another Cleveland, attorney Richard L. Boylan, 33, announced Monday as a Republican candidate for Ohio attorney general. Currently Mayor Perk's crime fighter and former assistant attorney general, Boyland said he favored a get-tough policy with criminals.

The only other Republican in the race is Franklin County Prosecutor George C. Smith. State Rep. C. William O'Neill, son of the Ohio Supreme Court chief justice, recently withdrew his candidacy.

Reporters Kept Away By President

CAMP DAVID, Md. (AP) — President Nixon's desire for privacy has made it impossible for reporters to confirm that he really is at his mountaintop retreat.

In addition, a press communications trailer, installed inside Camp David gates for use of the news media, has been removed. Also gone is a duck blind with two telephones from which news representatives have watched presidential helicopter takeoffs and landings.

Thus, the White House has removed from within the closely guarded gates of Camp David all press communications that had been installed by the Nixon administration in earlier days when press spokesmen promised "an open administration."

These facilities have served a four-member wire service pool of photographers and reporters and have been used for special events, including the visit of Soviet Premier Leonid I. Brezhnev last June.

Asked about the trailer, Deputy Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren said it was only being relocated. "We're thinking about relocating it. We're looking for a better place to serve everybody."

He said the 10-by-50-foot office-style trailer, installed in November 1972, was still on the grounds of Camp David.

According to White House spokesmen, Nixon is working at Camp David on his State of the Union speech. But no members of the press have seen the President since he left the White House Thursday night.

Nothing is known of the President's activities here, except what White House press spokesmen wish to tell.

China To Free American

TOKYO (AP) — China says the American captured nine days ago in the battle for the Paracel Islands is ill and will be released on Thursday at the Hong Kong border.

Hsinhua, the official Chinese news agency, said five sick or wounded South Vietnamese would also be handed over with Gerald Emil Kosh, 27, of Lafayette Hill, Pa. The report said Chinese forces captured 48 South Vietnamese in the battle Jan. 19-20 and they would be released "in batches." But it gave no timetable.

The report gave no details of Kosh's condition.

The State Department said earlier that Kosh, a civilian Defense Department employee, was on a routine trip with a Vietnamese patrol boat when Chinese forces moved into the coral archipelago in the South China Sea and overran South Vietnamese units that had been put ashore on the disputed islands.

It was assumed that the United States government, acting through the U. S. Liaison Office in Peking, had asked the Chinese government for Kosh's release.

A State Department spokesman said Monday night that no formal notification of the release had been received. He added that if the Hsinhua report is correct, "we certainly are gratified by the news."

The U. S. Embassy in Saigon said Kosh, a bachelor and a captain in the Special Forces during the Vietnam war, was a regional liaison officer to the Vietnamese armed forces and was stationed in Da Nang.

The embassy said he went to the Paracels before hostilities were even anticipated and was put ashore on one of the islands as a safety measure when shooting broke out between South Vietnamese and Chinese vessels.

Weather

Partly cloudy today and tonight. High today, upper 40s. Low tonight, mid 30s. Partly cloudy Wednesday with high in 50s. Probability of precipitation, 20 per cent today and tonight and 10 per cent tomorrow. Temperatures Monday were: high, 52; low, 38.

Jaycees Honor Bailey, Chilcote

By BOB BENSONHAVER
Herald Staff Writer

The Circleville Jaycees named Jake Bailey as the Outstanding Young Man and John L. Chilcote as the Outstanding Senior Citizen, Monday night, at the 26th Annual Distinguished Service Awards Banquet.

They were honored along with William Walker, Outstanding Farmer and Roger Patterson, Outstanding Educator.

Guest speaker for the ceremony was Ray Monsalvatge, Dayton, a world wide traveller and speaker.

The 31-year-old Bailey said when accepting his award, "If it were not for my mother and wife, I wouldn't be where I am today." He was introduced by Robert Ogden, 1972 recipient, who stated that "Jake Bailey probably has had to overcome more adversity than any previous recipient, and has had to overcome both economic and social handicaps."

Born and raised in Circleville, Bailey graduated from Circleville High School in 1960. He married the former Chris Byrd and has two children.

He served in the U. S. Marine Corps returning to his hometown to work in local business and industry.

Bailey has coached little league baseball and basketball in the Church of Christ league. He served on the Circleville Youth Baseball Board; and is a past president of the East End PICCA Community Center.

He also served as the president of the Jaycees, the board of directors of the Sertoma Club, the 4-H Study Advisory Board, the board of directors of the Ohio Jaycees, and the local YMCA membership board.

At present he is serving as a member of the General Advisory Board of the Pickaway-Ross Joint Vocational School and is an active member of the Sertoma Club and Jaycees.

The 1973 Outstanding Young Man has been instrumental in the organization of the Ashville Chapter of Jaycees and the First Correctional Institute Jaycee Chapter at Chillicothe.

Bailey was a key organizer in the Ohio Jaycees Benefit Basketball game for the Columbus Mental Hospital; the first Sertoma Cancer Benefit Basketball game; and assisted in the first Western Rodeo in Pickaway County.

He is active in the local merchants softball and basketball leagues and the Campus Church where he is a member. He has the distinction of being an honorary member of Kiwanis, Delphos, Ohio, Fire Fighters and the Chillicothe Correctional Institute Jaycee Chapter.

Active in the Jaycees, Bailey has served as the national director of the Ohio Jaycees and is presently the programming vice president of the Ohio Jaycees.

The 1973 recipient is an employee of Onwes-Illinois Forest Products Plant where he holds the position of foreman of finishing and is a member of the Owens-Illinois Club.

He once stated before the Ohio Jaycees State Convention, "That had it not been for his friends and his supporters and the community of Circleville, he would never have deserved the opportunities and privileges in all aspects of his life that he has."

John L. Chilcote was born June 2, 1911 in South Bloomingville and married the former Jeannette Hockman in 1942 in the Methodist parsonage.

A graduate of Saltcreek Township High School, he attended Ohio University finishing his post-graduate work at Ohio University. He was drafted into the Army prior to completion of his education.

Introduced by Robert Liggett, the outstanding senior citizen has been a teacher and administration in Ohio for 42 years serving 36 of those years in the Circleville system. He began teaching in 1931, was a teacher and principal from 1932 to 1936 and 1948 to 1966, a teacher from 1936 to 1948 and served as the Principal of the Circleville Junior High School 1966 to 1973.

He was the promoter for the establishment of a junior high school in Circleville replacing the 8-4 plan and served as the first principal of the school for seven years.

Under the auspices of the American Automobile Association, Chilcote established the first schoolboy patrol in Circleville and maintaining it for 17 years.

He served two terms as president of the Circleville Teacher's Association; on the committee for establishing the first uniform testing program for Circleville schools; on the committee to revise the curriculum of the Junior High School; the committee for re-establishing the PTA in Circleville serving on its executive committee for 22 years.

The Outstanding Senior Citizen is a member of the Community United Methodist Church where he is chairman of the board of directors; chairman of the finance committee; member of the building committee when the new educational wing was built; and is presently a member of the stewardship committee.

He is a World War II veteran and a member of the American Legion.

A Mason for 40 years, he has served as Master of the Adelphi Masonic Lodge No. 527; is a member of the Pickaway Shrine Club and the Scottish Rite and Aladdin Temple Shrine.

He is a long-time member of the Rotary Club serving as the chairman of attendance and the Youth and Scholarship committee, and a member of the Pickaway County Historical Society.

Chilcote also served seven years on the Circleville Township Zoning Appeals Board serving as the chairman of it.

It has been said that J.L. Chilcote has given outstanding service to his church, community, country and best of all, a man who has for 12 years nurtured and guided the education of the children of the Circleville area.

Ex-Convict Seeks Office

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A 32-year-old Columbus ex-convict said Monday he will seek the Democratic nomination for a seat in the Ohio House of Representatives.

Charles Albert Crespo, public relations director for the Central Ohio Seventh Step Foundation, spent 11 years in Ohio and Florida prisons on charges of armed robbery and breaking and entering.

"I recognize that there are those who will view my candidacy as a personal affront to their particular views concerning the roles which an offender should be allowed to play in our society," Crespo said.

"My only rebuttal is that one of the cornerstones of our criminal justice system is that once a person has completed his or her sentence, the penalty has been paid."

Crespo had served eight years in the Ohio Penitentiary when Gov. John Gilligan commuted his sentence last year.

New Look Taken At Daylight Time

By LOUISE COOK

State and local authorities say that despite complaints about children walking to school in the dark, there is no firm proof that winter Daylight Saving Time has caused any significant increase in accident rates.

"We had several accidents right after the (time) change, but Daylight Saving Time didn't really have anything to do with most of them," said Walter J. Skower, police chief of Enfield, Conn.

Officials contacted by The Associated Press in a spot check said it was really too early to measure the impact of DST and added that it is always difficult to pinpoint the exact cause of many accidents.

Year-round Daylight Saving Time went into effect on Jan. 6 as an energy conservation measure. A recent AP survey of utility officials showed the effects of the switch so far were minor — with an electricity saving of less than one per cent.

Sen. Dick Clark, D-Iowa, backed by Majority Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana, introduced legislation on Monday urging Congress to repeal winter DST.

"It's time to recognize that we may well have made a mistake," said Clark. He said that the energy saving is not worth the risk to children.

Similar bills have been introduced in the House and the Florida legislature is meeting in special session today to vote on a move to return the state to standard time.

Eight children have been killed in early morning accidents in Florida since DST took effect. Only two died in the same period last year. The AP spot check also showed that one youngster died in Virginia, one in Ohio and two in California. In addition, a woman pedestrian in Connecticut and an adult school crossing guard in South Carolina were killed in predawn auto accidents.

Florida Gov. Reubin Askew, urging that standard time be reimposed all parts of the state in the eastern time zone, said, "The inescapable conclusion ... is that the darkness had a great deal to do with the predawn deaths."

Most officials elsewhere were reluctant to put all the blame for the accidents on DST. They noted that weather was a factor as was possible carelessness by some drivers.

On the plus side, authorities said the gasoline shortage has cut down on driving and thus on accidents in general and also noted that lower speed limits mean fewer and less serious accidents.

There also were signs that people were taking extra care to avoid accidents.

"Children apparently are being more cautious," said Lt. Alton Proudfoot of the Los Angeles police department. "They seem aware of the danger of walking in the dark."

Kissinger Can't Rest

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger apparently has scrubbed hopes for a week-long vacation in the Mexican resort city of Acapulco early next month.

The secretary of state had hoped to spend a week at Acapulco after a probable trip to Panama about Feb. 7 to sign a new declaration of principles for operation of the Panama Canal.

But U.S. officials said Monday that Acapulco is out until after an international energy conference scheduled in Washington Feb. 11. And on Feb. 20 Kissinger is scheduled to attend a hemisphere meeting in Mexico City.

Officials said he might try to work in a few days at Acapulco before or after the Mexico City meeting, but they said he has no fixed vacation plans and might pass up a vacation entirely.

Cold Day Closings Counterproductive?

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— State school Supt. Martin Essex said Monday it would be "counterproductive and self-defeating" to close schools on unusually cold days during the energy crisis.

Speaking at an energy conservation clinic for school administrators, Essex said more fuel would be used in the homes if a third of the state's population, which is involved in education, were released from the schools.

The AP spot check also showed that one youngster died in Virginia, one in Ohio and two in California. In addition, a woman pedestrian in Connecticut and an adult school crossing guard in South Carolina were killed in predawn auto accidents.

Florida Gov. Reubin Askew, urging that standard time be reimposed all parts of the state in the eastern time zone, said, "The inescapable conclusion ... is that the darkness had a great deal to do with the predawn deaths."

Most officials elsewhere were reluctant to put all the blame for the accidents on DST. They noted that weather was a factor as was possible carelessness by some drivers.

On the plus side, authorities said the gasoline shortage has cut down on driving and thus on accidents in general and also noted that lower speed limits mean fewer and less serious accidents.

There also were signs that people were taking extra care to avoid accidents.

"Children apparently are being more cautious," said Lt. Alton Proudfoot of the Los Angeles police department. "They seem aware of the danger of walking in the dark."

Kissinger Can't Rest

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger apparently has scrubbed hopes for a week-long vacation in the Mexican resort city of Acapulco early next month.

The secretary of state had hoped to spend a week at Acapulco after a probable trip to Panama about Feb. 7 to sign a new declaration of principles for operation of the Panama Canal.

But U.S. officials said Monday that Acapulco is out until after an international energy conference scheduled in Washington Feb. 11. And on Feb. 20 Kissinger is scheduled to attend a hemisphere meeting in Mexico City.

Officials said he might try to work in a few days at Acapulco before or after the Mexico City meeting, but they said he has no fixed vacation plans and might pass up a vacation entirely.

Cold Day Closings Counterproductive?

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—State school Supt. Martin Essex said Monday it would be "counterproductive and self-defeating" to close schools on unusually cold days during the energy crisis.

Speaking at an energy conservation clinic for school administrators, Essex said more fuel would be used in the homes if a third of the state's population, which is involved in education, were released from the schools.

Markets

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market drifted lower today but showed little inclination to emphasize this trend.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials at noon was down 2.30 at 850.71, while advances and declines were about even on the New York Stock Exchange.

Lucien Hooper, analyst with W. E. Hutton & Co., observed:

"The January market hasn't done much more than tell us it doesn't want to go down. It hasn't told us it wants to go up."

Brokers said investors also were awaiting signs of an easing of the oil boycott. Trading was slow, indicating that many traders had taken to the sidelines. Analysts said they expected the market to continue drifting uncertainly until some news developments triggered either an advance or selloff.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market-value index at noon was up .14 at 97.05, while the NYSE composite index was off .12 at 51.27.

Brezhnev Speaks At Cuban Rally

MIAMI (AP) — Soviet Communist party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev gets his first chance to address the Cuban nation today at a massive outdoor rally in Havana.

Brezhnev, who received a tumultuous greeting on his arrival in the Cuban capital on Monday, is expected to express his country's solidarity with the Cuban regime of Prime Minister Fidel Castro at ceremonies in the Plaza de la Revolucion.

The 67-year-old Brezhnev, accompanied by Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko and a group of economic and political specialists, is expected to spend much of the week-long visit in conferences with Castro and his aides.

There has been no official word on the subjects to be discussed. But there has been renewed speculation of an improvement in relations between the Communist island and the United States, a move Brezhnev reportedly favors.

If everything goes as planned, Brezhnev will also mingle with the people and make a round of ceremonial visits in the provinces.

It is Brezhnev's first trip to Cuba and the first by a top Kremlin leader since Premier Alexei N. Kosygin spent five days on the Caribbean island in late 1971.

Havana radio, monitored in Miami, said the greeting Brezhnev got Monday was "the most enthusiastic and significant reception ever accorded a visiting dignitary."

Shouts of "Viva Cuba! Viva Brezhnev!" engulfed the Soviet leader as he stepped from his Ilyushin-62 jetliner at Havana's Jose Marti International Airport after the 14-hour flight from Moscow.

After a 21-gun salute, Brezhnev rode with Castro and President Osvaldo Dorticos in an open limousine into downtown Havana. Cheering, flag-waving throngs lined most of the 10-mile-long route.

His arrival was carried live via satellite on Russian television.

Enroute, Brezhnev sent a message to President Nixon, expressing his "best wishes to you, Mr. President, to the government and the people of the United States."

Ohio Rail Corridor Runs Into Problem

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The outlook for massive federal funds to help Ohio provide intercity rail service from Cleveland to Cincinnati is not encouraging, a legislative committee has been told.

David Watts, director of state and local relations for Amtrak, the national rail service, said Monday he doubts the proposed Cleveland-Columbus-Dayton-Cincinnati corridor could qualify as one of Amtrak's experimental routes.

Otherwise, he explained, the state will have to pay two-thirds of the costs of renovating existing tracks, and the same portions of all operating losses.

Estimates of up to $250,000 a mile for track improvements and $800,000 each for new rail car, and $150,000 for renovating used cars were among figures heard from Watts and others by the Legislative Service Commission Study Committee on Rapid Transit.

Sen. Anthony O. Calabrese, D-22 Cleveland, is chairman of the panel which stepped up its research activities in the wake of the energy crisis and the threat of fuel rationing.

Watts said a provision in the 1970 federal law that established Amtrak permits it to spend $90 million a year for up to two years on designated experimental routes on a 70-30 matching basis. "But frankly, I feel those funds would be used to help support a much longer route," he said.

The committee heard estimates from Steven Brumble of the Cincinnati consultant firm of Vogt, Sage & Pflumer, that the route would have to attract from one million to two million passengers to break even. But he asserted the corridor has a potential of "three or four times that amount" and said it should be able to show a profit.

Watts said it will not be possible to

Greenlee Named To Guidance Center Board Of Trustees

Pickaway County Commissioners Monday accepted the resignation of Dr. William A. Myers from the Scioto Paint Valley Guidance center board of trustees.

Dr. Myers, in submitting his resignation, pointed out that a recent ruling of the Ohio Department of Mental Health did not permit one person to serve on a guidance center board and a mental health and retardation board at the same time.

He is also a member of the Paint Valley Mental Health and Retardation Board. Upon the recommendation made by Dr. Myers, Donald Greenlee, 424 Glenmont Court, was named to replace him on the board.

In other business yesterday James W. Kerr was appointed to serve on the Pickaway County Subdivision Review Board. Kerr, who lives in Chillicothe, is party chief for the Pickaway County Soil Survey.

The subdivision review board makes recommendations on all proposed subdivisions and residential developments outside city and village limits in Pickaway County. Representation on the board is from the Pickaway Soil and Water Conservation District, the county board of health, the county engineer's office, the county planning committee.

Two WCH Men Arrested In Legion Break-In

Pickaway County Sheriff Dwight Radcliff arrested two Washington Court House men in the break-in of the American Legion Post on U. S. Route 23.

Steven Russell Merritt, 20, Route 4, Washington C. H., and Terry Lee Adams, 23, Washington C. H. were found in the building during a routine check 3 a.m. Tuesday, by Sheriff's Deputy Earl Kuhn.

Kuhn found the rear door of the Legion unlocked and checked the premises. Sheriff Dwight Radcliff and Deputy Danny Dewey assisted Kuhn at the scene.

An additional charge may be placed against Adams for using tools for criminal purposes.

In other activity, vandals entered the Grove City Farmers Exchange, Derby, sometime between Friday and Sunday taking only a flashlight.

According to the report taken by Sheriff's Deputy Warren Straley, the vandals broke 31 windows with bricks from a cob burner.

Damage was estimated at $256.

Sheriff's Deputy James Deal investigated a report of breaking and entering and grand theft at the Charles Young residence, Route 1, Ashville.

Ohio Rail Corridor Runs Into Problem

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The outlook for massive federal funds to help Ohio provide intercity rail service from Cleveland to Cincinnati is not encouraging, a legislative committee has been told.

David Watts, director of state and local relations for Amtrak, the national rail service, said Monday he doubts the proposed Cleveland-Columbus-Dayton-Cincinnati corridor could qualify as one of Amtrak's experimental routes.

Otherwise, he explained, the state will have to pay two-thirds of the costs of renovating existing tracks, and the same portions of all operating losses.

Estimates of up to $250,000 a mile for track improvements and $800,000 each for new rail car, and $150,000 for renovating used cars were among figures heard from Watts and others by the Legislative Service Commission Study Committee on Rapid Transit.

Sen. Anthony O. Calabrese, D-22 Cleveland, is chairman of the panel which stepped up its research activities in the wake of the energy crisis and the threat of fuel rationing.

Watts said a provision in the 1970 federal law that established Amtrak permits it to spend $90 million a year for up to two years on designated experimental routes on a 70-30 matching basis. "But frankly, I feel those funds would be used to help support a much longer route," he said.

The committee heard estimates from Steven Brumble of the Cincinnati consultant firm of Vogt, Sage & Pfumler, that the route would have to attract from one million to two million passengers to break even. But he asserted the corridor has a potential of "three or four times that amount" and said it should be able to show a profit.

Watts said it will not be possible to

Greenlee Named To Guidance Center Board Of Trustees

Pickaway County Commissioners Monday accepted the resignation of Dr. William A. Myers from the Scioto Paint Valley Guidance center board of trustees.

Dr. Myers, in submitting his resignation, pointed out that a recent ruling of the Ohio Department of Mental Health did not permit one person to serve on a guidance center board and a mental health and retardation board at the same time.

He is also a member of the Paint Valley Mental Health and Retardation Board. Upon the recommendation made by Dr. Myers, Donald Greenlee, 424 Glenmont Court, was named to replace him on the board.

In other business yesterday James W. Kerr was appointed to serve on the Pickaway County Subdivision Review Board. Kerr, who lives in Chillicothe, is party chief for the Pickaway County Soil Survey.

The subdivision review board makes recommendations on all proposed subdivisions and residential developments outside city and village limits in Pickaway County. Representation on the board is from the Pickaway Soil and Water Conservation District, the county board of health, the county engineer's office, the county planning committee.

Two WCH Men Arrested In Legion Break-In

Pickaway County Sheriff Dwight Radcliff arrested two Washington Court House men in the break-in of the American Legion Post on U. S. Route 23.

Steven Russell Merritt, 20, Route 4, Washington C. H., and Terry Lee Adams, 23, Washington C. H. were found in the building during a routine check 3 a.m. Tuesday, by Sheriff's Deputy Earl Kuhn.

Kuhn found the rear door of the Legion unlocked and checked the premises. Sheriff Dwight Radcliff and Deputy Danny Dewey assisted Kuhn at the scene.

An additional charge may be placed against Adams for using tools for criminal purposes.

In other activity, vandals entered the Grove City Farmers Exchange, Derby, sometime between Friday and Sunday taking only a flashlight.

According to the report taken by Sheriff's Deputy Warren Straley, the vandals broke 31 windows with bricks from a cob burner.

Damage was estimated at $256.

Sheriff's Deputy James Deal investigated a report of breaking and entering and grand theft at the Charles Young residence, Route 1, Ashville.

CADDY MILLER'S MEN'S SHOP

By LEE LINDER
Associated Press Writer

The nation's railroads, in physical and fiscal decline for decades, see tantalizing prospects of renewed prosperity in the energy crisis. But, for the moment at least, it is doubtful they can grasp the opportunity.

The oil shortage aside, the railroads need more new equipment, especially for passenger service, and probably won't have it for at least two years. And they need hundreds of millions of dollars to rehabilitate track and roadbed for the modern, faster trains the public demands.

"It will take at least three years for railroad passenger service to get up to snuff," says Rep. Brock Adams, D-Wash., one of the authors of the new bill to bail out seven bankrupt Eastern roads, including the Penn Central, the nation's biggest.

Right now, the gasoline shortage already has boosted longdistance and commuter passenger traffic. The general figure used is 10 per cent, but the increase ranges from 3 per cent on some Philadelphia commuter trains to as much as 80 per cent on others such as the winter-peak New York-to-Florida Amtrak run.

Already, trains on some heavily traveled Eastern routes are showing the strain. They are overcrowded and often run late and use substandard cars.

The railroads say additional increases of as little as 5 per cent, especially on packed commuter trains, could produce the inconvenience and chaos that caused the exodus to other modes of transportation to begin with.

The bulk of today's railroad passengers ride commuter trains: roughly 453,000 people going daily to and from work, or into downtown areas to shop or relax. Most of the rest ride Amtrak, the government-backed corporation which runs all but eight of the nation's 210 passenger trains. Last year, Amtrak carried a total of 17 million riders, or about 46,500 daily. Even if that figure were to double this year — an impossibility because of the equipment situation — the Association of American Railroads figures it would, at best, accommodate 1 per cent of the nation's car drivers.

Freight traffic is in better shape, however, and more likely to hold any gains. The railroads, having willingly turned over their money-losing passenger trains to Amtrak in 1971, claim they can handle at least 15 per cent more coal and other merchandise without the need of new hoppers, gondolas and boxcars.

But within a year, if a prolonged gasoline shortage boosted freight tonnage as expected, a critical equipment shortage would occur. There now is an order backlog of more than 61,500 freight cars, which should be delivered this year. New orders will not be filled until sometime in 1975, or later.

Underlying and further complicating the situation is a huge uncertainty: How long will the gasoline shortage last?

The question is a key one and presents a dilemma for both industry and government.

If the crisis is relatively short, can they risk heavy financial outlays to upgrade equipment and facilities that might become superfluous in a year or two?

Or will, as many experts predict, the cost of gasoline and diesel oil reach a level high enough to make rail travel and shipment permanently attractive again?

There are no hard answers at once, though the railroads would seem to prefer an orderly, gradual shift to any rush that would put intolerable strains on present equipment and facilities.

In any event, proponents of a strong rail system see dividends from the crisis, no matter what course is taken.

Here is a point-by-point look at the railroad situation, based on a thorough survey of experts in and out of the industry:

Freight: The railroad industry had its best freight year in history in 1973, with $14.7 billion in operating revenues. The Association of American Railroads, the voice of the country's 64 major roads and 448 smaller lines, says the figure could jump 15 per cent this year, a large share of it in hauling coal.

But the energy unknowns loom large.

"I don't know what's going to happen," says W. Graham Claytor Jr., president of the Southern Railway, one of the most profitable in the nation. But on freight, he adds, "if there's a great deal of pressure, I am sure we can move faster and unload faster."

But so far there has been no real pressure from shippers.

A survey of major firms showed that they aren't ready for wholesale switching from highway to rail as long as their trucks are getting the fuel they need.

Some shippers, though, are making emergency plans to divert goods if the oil situation worsens — which no one yet is predicting — or if truck transport becomes too costly.

Claytor insists the answer to the energy crunch is to put more freight on the rails. But he acknowledged that trucks have their role in America's transportation.

"For very short hauls, and for light density branch lines, railroad traffic is wasteful in comparison to trucks," Claytor says. "But for long distances we can carry four times as much freight with the same amount of fuel."

Even so, shippers like the door-to-door conveniences and speed of trucks and their records of less pilferage and damage to goods than boxcar shipment.

Passenger service: While shippers maintain a wait-and-see attitude, passenger carriers already are getting and expect more. A 15 per cent increase over last year is used by some rail and government men, but Amtrak spokesman Edwin Edel says: "We just don't know how much the energy situation will increase demand."

Whatever the increase, it will not be easy to handle because of lack of cars, especially clean, comfortable, modern ones.

Most of the equipment used by Amtrak is more than 20 years old and completing its modernization will take years and billions of dollars. Meantime, the corporation plans to acquire 200 cars it once rejected unfit.

Edel explained that Amtrak has no choice since new cars can't be designed and delivered before 1977.

"People want to ride trains if they can be assured that they can get a reservation, get a clean, safe ride and get there on time," says Hartke. "People don't like to be late."

Six out of 10 Amtrak trains that travel more than 300 miles are late, an average of 38 minutes.

Commuter lines: Equipment problems exist here, too, but officials in New York, Philadelphia, Chicago and Boston, where most of the nation's rail commuters live, hope to encourage businesses and factories to stagger starting and closing times to stretch ridership hours.

"We must get out of the 7-to-9 and 4-to-6 syndrome," says James G. McConnon, chairman of the Southeastern Pennsylvania Transportation Authority which subsidizes 812 Penn Central and Reading trains in the Philadelphia suburbs.

"If we could stretch it in the morning from 6-to-10 and in the evening from 3-to-7 it would make one heck of a difference in the passenger load and give us space to carry a lot more people when they want to."

Otherwise, warns William J. Ronan,

Energy Conservation Not Necessarily Reflected In Gas Bill

It may appear to Columbia Gas of Ohio customers in the Circleville area who have been responding to the national plea to conserve energy that their efforts are not reflected in their gas bills this month.

But according to Calvin Danford, manager for the gas company in the Circleville area, the impact is there, it is just hidden by a number of other factors.

Danford said one factor is cold weather during the latter part of December and the first part of January. Heating requirements for those customers billed during the first 16 days of January were on the average 80 per cent higher than during their previous billing periods and an average of 10 per cent higher than during the same periods last year.

He said that because of this even the customers who responded to the company's plea to reduce thermostat settings six degrees below last year may actually have used more gas during the period than they did the previous year simply because the weather was so much colder.

Danford went on to say that the length of the billing periods has an effect on the size of a customer's bill and that because of the Christmas and New Years holidays, some of the bills received in January reflect billing periods as much as three days longer than normal.

He also said that even though customers might actually have used less gas during the period, they could possibly receive a higher bill because of increases in the cost of gas from the southwest as well as higher rate schedules that have gone into effect in some areas during the past year.

"The response by our customers to our request to lower thermostat settings and to practice other conservation measures has been outstanding," he said. "It is gratifying to see so many people are concerned and willing to reduce their usage in an effort to conserve available energy supplies."

Pennsylvania Dutch persons sometimes adorn a small, bare tree with Easter eggs, a custom they may have brought from Germany.

chairman of the Metropolitan Transportation Authority in New York, which carries 200,000 persons every weekday, we will be "packing people in" and forced to limit any increase to around 15 per cent until there's more equipment.

Other factors: Besides passenger and freight cars, shortages also exist in steel wheels, wooden ties and tracks. The ties and tracks are needed to upgrade roadbeds, and without more of them efforts to make rail travel faster and more comfortable will slow down.

"The order backlog at the end of December was 23 million ties," says Randy Wingard of Koppers Co. in Pittsburgh, world's largest supplier of wood ties to railroads. "Production doubled in the last half of 1973...and we think the problem will be solved in 1975."

Wheels and tracks also are being produced at peak levels in plants that make them. And U.S. Steel Corp., one of the major suppliers, says concern about future needs had previously sidetracked expansion plans.

"No one wants to put maybe $10 million into some item and find out two years later it's not wanted," says a U.S. Steel spokesman.

Edel explained that Amtrak has no choice since new cars can't be designed and delivered before 1977.

"People want to ride trains if they can be assured that they can get a reservation, get a clean, safe ride and get there on time," says Hartke. "People don't like to be late."

Six out of 10 Amtrak trains that travel more than 300 miles are late, an average of 38 minutes.

Commuter lines: Equipment problems exist here, too, but officials in New York, Philadelphia, Chicago and Boston, where most of the nation's rail commuters live, hope to encourage businesses and factories to stagger starting and closing times to stretch ridership hours.

"We must get out of the 7-to-9 and 4-to-6 syndrome," says James G. McConnon, chairman of the Southeastern Pennsylvania Transportation Authority which subsidizes 812 Penn Central and Reading trains in the Philadelphia suburbs.

"If we could stretch it in the morning from 6-to-10 and in the evening from 3-to-7 it would make one heck of a difference in the passenger load and give us space to carry a lot more people when they want to."

Otherwise, warns William J. Ronan,

chairman of the Metropolitan Transportation Authority in New York, which carries 200,000 persons every weekday, we will be "packing people in" and forced to limit any increase to around 15 per cent until there's more equipment.

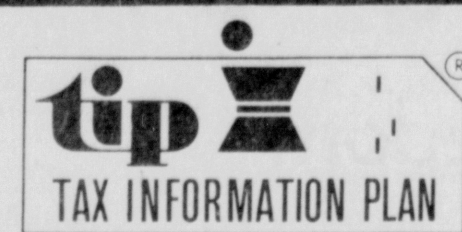

Other factors: Besides passenger and freight cars, shortages also exist in steel wheels, wooden ties and tracks. The ties and tracks are needed to upgrade roadbeds, and without more of them efforts to make rail travel faster and more comfortable will slow down.

"The order backlog at the end of December was 23 million ties," says Randy Wingard of Koppers Co. in Pittsburgh, world's largest supplier of wood ties to railroads. "Production doubled in the last half of 1973...and we think the problem will be solved in 1975."

Wheels and tracks also are being produced at peak levels in plants that make them. And U.S. Steel Corp., one of the major suppliers, says concern about future needs had previously sidetracked expansion plans.

"No one wants to put maybe $10 million into some item and find out two years later it's not wanted," says a U.S. Steel spokesman.

Energy Conservation Not Necessarily Reflected In Gas Bill

It may appear to Columbia Gas of Ohio customers in the Circleville area who have been responding to the national plea to conserve energy that their efforts are not reflected in their gas bills this month.

But according to Calvin Danford, manager for the gas company in the Circleville area, the impact is there, it is just hidden by a number of other factors.

Danford said one factor is cold weather during the latter part of December and the first part of January. Heating requirements for those customers billed during the first 16 days of January were on the average 80 per cent higher than during their previous billing periods and an average of 10 per cent higher than during the same periods last year.

He said that because of this even the customers who responded to the company's plea to reduce thermostat settings six degrees below last year may actually have used more gas during the period than they did the previous year simply because the weather was so much colder.

Danford went on to say that the length of the billing periods has an effect on the size of a customer's bill and that because of the Christmas and New Years holidays, some of the bills received in January reflect billing periods as much as three days longer than normal.

He also said that even though customers might actually have used less gas during the period, they could possibly receive a higher bill because of increases in the cost of gas from the southwest as well as higher rate schedules that have gone into effect in some areas during the past year.

"The response by our customers to our request to lower thermostat settings and to practice other conservation measures has been outstanding," he said. "It is gratifying to see so many people are concerned and willing to reduce their usage in an effort to conserve available energy supplies."

Pennsylvania Dutch persons sometimes adorn a small, bare tree with Easter eggs, a custom they may have brought from Germany.

Hey, I'm trying to figure out why Mustang II is priced higher than Plymouth Duster.

What I mean is... it can't be the room. Because Duster holds more people than Mustang II. And it can't be the trunk, because Duster's almost three times bigger. Duster's even got an electronic ignition that virtually eliminates ignition tune-ups. And it's still priced lower than Mustang II. Guess that's what separates superstars from other cars.

Animal Boredom

Are zoo animals bored? John Spring, director of the San Francisco Zoo, says part of the problem is the zoo animals are so well cared for and life is so easy for them that boredom just naturally is the result.

Take away a gorilla's need to forage all day for its food and what is left for the poor primate, he asks. Looking at people, that's about all, he answers.

Mr. Spring says because they are bored, and have nothing to interest them, the animals aren't reproducing. And in this age you can't just go out and buy zoo animals the way you used to be able to do. There are all of those people around who ask questions about upsetting the ecological balance.

The wire service that brought the story of the plight of the zoo animals also reports that six men recently exhibited their work at a needlepoint festival in San Francisco. The reasons the men had for taking up needlepoint were varied. One, for instance, said it kept him from getting stoned during long airplane trips.

But all of the reasons amounted to the same thing, basically. They took up needlepoint because it interested them and kept them from being bored.

There's no reason why a good, smart gorilla couldn't be introduced to the same hobby.

NEW YORK — How jaded can we get? The TV networks will not cover the return to earth of the Skylab 3 astronauts. The Navy, however, will distribute snapshots of the homecoming of the record-breakers, and it is believed that the space agency will release their names.

Remember when people knelt in public places — New York's Grand Central Terminal, for example — and prayed for Alan Shepard during his 15-minute suborbital flight?

The American astronaut is rapidly becoming obsolescent in space. There are no manned space shots among the 26 launches scheduled for 1974. (The first of the 26, a British communications satellite we essayed to shoot from Cape Kennedy to synchronous orbit over the Indian Ocean, fell in the Atlantic instead. Its second stage went on strike.) The next manned voyage will be the joint U.S.-Society earth-orbital meeting in mid-1975.

Unmanned space probes are less costly than those involving astronauts and, in most cases, return more information to earth. The manless vehicle does not have to concern itself with heavy and sometimes inefficient life supports, oxygen and food supplies, etc. And they need not come back and fall into the arms of the United States Navy.

During the year, NASA will be reimbursed for a majority of its launchings. It will sell its boosters, and launching and tracking know-how to Britain, France, Germany, Italy, the Netherlands, Western Union and Comsat.

Jacqueline Susann's new one, "Dolores," is a real dinger for originality. Beautiful wife of a dead President of the United States flies his body home to Washington on same plane with the new President. New President tries to comfort her. She shrinks from him. She holds up magnificently during the ordeal of the funeral. Her sister, married to a British lord, comforts her. So do her children. After decent period of mourning she meets enormously wealthy Frenchman with a yacht "bigger than Onassis." Marries him, to distress of her family and the late President's friends. He showers jewels and huge settlement on her. He still sees a lot of his old mistress, a famed ballet dancer.

A book with a strikingly novel plot like that will swiftly rise to the top of the best seller list.

Correcting errors, a University of Missouri School of Journalism survey shows, is the newest passion of the American press. The most recent big blooper was in the Washington Post, relates Newsweek, which is owned by the Post. Seems that Post reporter Tim O'Brien, covering Sen. Barry Goldwater's appearance on "Meet the Press," thought he heard Goldwater state that President Nixon is "probably the best President we've had in this century." What Goldwater actually said was that President Truman was, which was an even better quote from the Arizona conservative.

Before the Post could get around to setting the matter straight in a front page apology, the Post's wire service had zapped it to the client papers. The day after the broadcast, Tom Wicker of the New York Times took Goldwater to task for selecting Nixon as the greatest of the century. Correcting it was as difficult as stopping an oil well fire, or a chain reaction.

Such is its passion to don sackcloth and shake on ashes, when caught in an error, that the New York Times last week made this confession:

"In an article that appeared yesterday, Estelle Frankfurter was identified as a retired member of the National Labor Relations Board. She was a member of the board's staff."

We expect a future apology to the effect that Ms. Frankfurter was an ex-officio or temporary member of the staff... and so on.

Corrections, particularly typographical corrections, are sometimes hard to control under the exploding pressures of deadlines. There was the classic case, years ago, of a typo in a story about a pompous ass of a retired Army colonel. He was described in the friendly feature article as "Bottle Scarred." He called up the editor and threatened to sue unless it was changed to "battle scarred" in the next edition. The correction was rushed. The next edition called him "Battle Scarred."

Corrections are a losing battle, as Gen. Jonathan M. MacArthur always said.

Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — If you're one of the many potential homebuyers who is waiting for interest rates to come down you'll be concerned with what the Federal Home Loan Bank Board has to say. It says you'll have a very long wait.

That forecast was contained in an overview of the industry in 1980, published in this month's board Journal. The board is the regulatory agency for the nation's savings and loan associations, which write most home mortgages.

Offering his view of conditions in 1980, Harris Friedman, chief of economic research, wrote:

"... Interest rates will continue to reflect an inflation premium and the chances for the level of long-term interest rates to come down significantly are remote."

Aside from that gloomy prediction, the outlook for users of S&Ls looks pretty good, even exciting, and by all means reassuring. The unbalanced checkbook, for example, might finally be resolved.

Looking into "A day in the life of an S&L customer — 1980," another board official lists some of the services being offered.

The day begins with John Doe preparing to pay his bills. He reviews the monthly statement he has received from the 10th Federal S&L Association. As he had instructed his employer to do, his paychecks had been deposited in his account.

On the 10th of the month the association automatically withdrew his mortgage payment from his account, and had transferred some other funds to higher yielding savings accounts.

One of these, a long-term account paying 8 per cent will be used for retirements or college tuition. Another account, yielding only 6 per cent, will be used for the family's annual vacation.

He notes that the S&L received and paid his electric and gas bills during the month, an arrangement he accepted when the companies established a preplanned budget, enabling him to know in advance what each bill would be.

As he reviewed his statement, he noted that his wife had taken $250 for food purchases and other items during the month. She had accomplished this merely by offering a plastic card to the foodstore clerk, who then inserted it in a gadget hooked up with the S&L. Make what you will of this additional service: "The clerk also could charge an extra amount so that his wife could receive some change for other shopping."

Reviewing his other regular expenses for the month, Doe simply tallied the bills, named the creditors in a standard form and mailed it to 10th Federal in a postage-paid envelope. Tenth Federal paid the bills.

"With first-class postage at 20 cents, he saved several dollars a month by letting his S&L handle his payments. Besides, he received a 4 per cent interest on his unused funds. In addition, the tiresome chore of balancing a checking account had been eliminated."

The highly-publicized case against Circleville by the Ohio Board of Liquor Control appeared to be temporarily snarled in Columbus. Due to an agenda jammed with other hearings, the board was forced to set the scheduled Circleville hearings back.

The two Circleville hearings before the board were: 1. A case against Circleville Moose Lodge on whether its state liquor permit should be revoked. 2. A case against the City of Circleville on whether its share of state liquor tax refunds should not be withheld.

Pickaway County bottomlands were inundated as the muddy Scioto River continued to creep upward following continual rains.

Weather Observer Charles Carter said the river reading was 16.37 feet and rising.

Juvenile Judge Sterling M. Lamb turned in his resignation as a member of the Pickaway County Child Welfare Board.

The resignation was a direct result of the refusal of the state department of welfare to recertify the county children's home.

First of the General Electric Slimline fluorescent lamps produced in the Circleville Plant were installed in the Circleville Oil Co. station, Court and High Sts.

Doe also liked several other services offered by his S&L, especially the complete preparation of his income tax return. "He felt he was getting bigger refunds, and certainly a lot sooner with the S&L preparing it."

In the same mail with the income tax return came a suggested budget for his family, which Doe immediately violated because of the enticement of still another service: easy money from a dispenser.

As he was leaving the office, Doe withdrew $50 from his account by inserting his plastic card in the cash dispenser. "Every office building in town, incidentally, had such a cash dispenser in 1980."

"You seem to be entirely recovered now. Why didn't you come in sooner?"

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

My husband has severe migraine headaches. We wonder if there has been any progress made in helping to cure these painful headaches.

Mrs. D. T., Wash.

Dear Mrs. T.:

Many types of headache parade under the name "migraine." Some people undoubtedly have true migraine headaches, but many others assume that the problem is migraine because of the intensity of their headaches.

I purposely bring this to your attention in the hope that a complete headache "profile" will be done on your husband in order to establish positively this diagnosis. This means inspection of the sinuses, the teeth, allergies, and the vascular system of the head and brain.

Neurological conditions must also be ruled out.

True migraine is characterized by paroxysmal attacks of one-sided headaches. These are usually accompanied by visual disturbances and stomach and intestinal upset.

When once the diagnosis is definitely made some of the new drugs have been extremely effective.

The experimental drug prostaglandin, not yet released for public consumption, holds forth great promise for those cases unable to be controlled by available drugs.

It is very discouraging for victims of migraine headaches when treatment is not immediately remedial. It takes a great deal of trial and error to find the ideal combination of medication and psychological support to keep these headaches under control.

Our 16-year-old daughter has been menstruating since the age of 13.

Now this happens every 12 or 14 days. She has been to three different doctors in the past two years.

Can something be done to lengthen her cycle?

Mrs. A.H., Mich.

Dear Mrs. H.:

The hormone imbalance and the psychological overtones associated with such a problem demand concentrated effort by one physician over an extended period of time.

Only in this way can the patient be kept under observation and the drugs that are used be balanced for her individual need. Impatience and "doctor-hopping" inevitably lead to frustrations.

In gynecological problems assiduous care and uninterrupted observation are the keystones to successful results.

A good number of hormones are available. These are used singly and together in an effort to regulate menstrual disturbances.

Letters To The Editor

Dear Editor:

We would like to thank the Circleville Herald for printing our letter to teenagers last week and for giving us additional space to clarify several points that have led to some misunderstanding. The letter was written to a small percentage of students, hoping they would consider that love through respect of human life would be a more positive approach to living than promoting hatred and disrespect. The situations described were only for the purpose of showing the type of things happening, and we, unfortunately, did not check to see if any of these situations could be misleading or were based on rumored information.

Our mistake came in trying to be as brief as possible and compacting and simplifying the information gathered from across the nation, and relying on a more local level. We had talked to students and adults in California and several areas in Ohio, read newspaper articles from AP and UPI, and watched television reports. Then, in writing the letter the way we did, it appeared that the problems were only local situations. For any distress caused by implying that a particular person or school was involved we are truly sorry, for it defeats the purpose of promoting respect.

Our schools are doing an excellent job, considering the pressures of these days. There are many fine educators and students here and across the nation. We would particularly like to commend the student body here at our own Teays Valley High School for their renewed school spirit and interest in scholastic achievement. We still feel, however, that it is a shame when a small percentage of students do not respect or care about the human rights of those people who are trying to educate them or attend to their safety. Sadly, these few don't even respect the rights of their contemporaries who have needs and emotions, either like or different from their own. As we said in our letter last week, "Respect human life no matter whose it is."

Sincerely,
Mr. and Mrs. PETER MCQUAIN
Ashville, Ohio

Dear Editor:

Tuesday, February 5th at 1 p.m. on the second floor of the City Building!

This date, time and place should be kept uppermost in the minds of all residents of the Circleville Community who have ever endured the stench which polluted the area frequently during the past 18 months, especially during the warm summer months.

This date, time and place was advertised in the local newspaper on December 29th by the Ohio Environmental Protection Agency to be a public meeting and will consider evidence, either written or oral, from any person on compliance schedules of the Container Corporation of America. In a telephone contact with this agency I was told the topic for discussion is to be air pollution. Since most of you residents have been offended by the foul odors of the past it is hoped that you do not want such odors repeated again this summer, so please plan to attend this important meeting and make your objections known.

Sincerely,
ELEANOR W. SKAGGS
130 Dunmore Rd.

Dear Editor:

I would like to say if you have a special award column in your paper I have a name to go in it. During the two weeks before Christmas and the two weeks following, I had two grandchildren plus a daughter-in-law in the hospital and one more member of the family on the waiting list to go to the hospital.

At this time I was without transportation to and from the hospital. Due to the seriousness of the sick, my presence was required almost around the clock which caused quite a problem in transportation.

I received a phone call from two of your local citizens telling me they were on their way down here if I were to be home.

These fine people brought to me one of their cars, gas tank filled, and handed over the keys, saying "Keep it as long as you wish." So I would like to say they deserve recognition as good citizens of your town. They are Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Toland, S. Washington St. We really say thanks to fine people in a day when no one trusts anyone else. No one wants to be involved in the problems of others, these two wonderful people denied themselves so I could have.

Thank you

Unmanned space probes are less costly than those involving astronauts and, in most cases, return more information to earth. The manless vehicle does not have to concern itself with heavy and sometimes inefficient life supports, oxygen and food supplies, etc. And they need not come back and fall into the arms of the United States Navy.

During the year, NASA will be reimbursed for a majority of its launchings. It will sell its boosters, and launching and tracking know-how to Britain, France, Germany, Italy, the Netherlands, Western Union and Comsat.

Jacqueline Susann's new one, "Dolores," is a real dinger for originality. Beautiful wife of a dead President of the United States flies his body home to Washington on same plane with the new President. New President tries to comfort her. She shrinks from him. She holds up magnificently during the ordeal of the funeral. Her sister, married to a British lord, comforts her. So do her children. After decent period of mourning she meets enormously wealthy Frenchman with a yacht "bigger than Onassis." Marries him, to distress of her family and the late President's friends. He showers jewels and huge settlement on her. He still sees a lot of his old mistress, a famed ballet dancer.

A book with a strikingly novel plot like that will swiftly rise to the top of the best seller list.

Correcting errors, a University of Missouri School of Journalism survey shows, is the newest passion of the American press. The most recent big blooper was in the Washington Post, relates Newsweek, which is owned by the Post. Seems that Post reporter Tim O'Brien, covering Sen. Barry Goldwater's appearance on "Meet the Press," thought he heard Goldwater state that President Nixon is "probably the best President we've had in this century." What Goldwater actually said was that President Truman was, which was an even better quote from the Arizona conservative.

Before the Post could get around to setting the matter straight in a front page apology, the Post's wire service had zapped it to the client papers. The day after the broadcast, Tom Wicker of the New York Times took Goldwater to task for selecting Nixon as the greatest of the century. Correcting it was as difficult as stopping an oil well fire, or a chain reaction.

Such is its passion to don sackcloth and shake on ashes, when caught in an error, that the New York Times last week made this confession:

"In an article that appeared yesterday, Estelle Frankfurter was identified as a retired member of the National Labor Relations Board. She was a member of the board's staff."

We expect a future apology to the effect that Ms. Frankfurter was an ex-officio or temporary member of the staff... and so on.

Corrections, particularly typographical corrections, are sometimes hard to control under the exploding pressures of deadlines. There was the classic case, years ago, of a typo in a story about a pompous ass of a retired Army colonel. He was described in the friendly feature article as "Bottle Scarred." He called up the editor and threatened to sue unless it was changed to "battle scarred" in the next edition. The correction was rushed. The next edition called him "Battle Scarred."

Corrections are a losing battle, as Gen. Jonathan M. MacArthur always said.

Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — If you're one of the many potential homebuyers who is waiting for interest rates to come down you'll be concerned with what the Federal Home Loan Bank Board has to say. It says you'll have a very long wait.

That forecast was contained in an overview of the industry in 1980, published in this month's board Journal. The board is the regulatory agency for the nation's savings and loan associations, which write most home mortgages.

Offering his view of conditions in 1980, Harris Friedman, chief of economic research, wrote:

"... Interest rates will continue to reflect an inflation premium and the chances for the level of long-term interest rates to come down significantly are remote."

Aside from that gloomy prediction, the outlook for users of S&Ls looks pretty good, even exciting, and by all means reassuring. The unbalanced checkbook, for example, might finally be resolved.

Looking into "A day in the life of an S&L customer — 1980," another board official lists some of the services being offered.

The day begins with John Doe preparing to pay his bills. He reviews the monthly statement he has received from the 10th Federal S&L Association. As he had instructed his employer to do, his paychecks had been deposited in his account.

On the 10th of the month the association automatically withdrew his mortgage payment from his account, and had transferred some other funds to higher yielding savings accounts.

One of these, a long-term account paying 8 per cent will be used for retirements or college tuition. Another account, yielding only 6 per cent, will be used for the family's annual vacation.

He notes that the S&L received and paid his electric and gas bills during the month, an arrangement he accepted when the companies established a preplanned budget, enabling him to know in advance what each bill would be.

As he reviewed his statement, he noted that his wife had taken $250 for food purchases and other items during the month. She had accomplished this merely by offering a plastic card to the foodstore clerk, who then inserted it in a gadget hooked up with the S&L. Make what you will of this additional service: "The clerk also could charge an extra amount so that his wife could receive some change for other shopping."

Reviewing his other regular expenses for the month, Doe simply tallied the bills, named the creditors in a standard form and mailed it to 10th Federal in a postage-paid envelope. Tenth Federal paid the bills.

"With first-class postage at 20 cents, he saved several dollars a month by letting his S&L handle his payments. Besides, he received a 4 per cent interest on his unused funds. In addition, the tiresome chore of balancing a checking account had been eliminated."

They'll Do It Every Time

"You seem to be entirely recovered now. Why didn't you come in sooner?"

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

My husband has severe migraine headaches. We wonder if there has been any progress made in helping to cure these painful headaches.

Mrs. D. T., Wash.

Dear Mrs. T.:

Many types of headache parade under the name "migraine." Some people undoubtedly have true migraine headaches, but many others assume that the problem is migraine because of the intensity of their headaches.

I purposely bring this to your attention in the hope that a complete headache "profile" will be done on your husband in order to establish positively this diagnosis. This means inspection of the sinuses, the teeth, allergies, and the vascular system of the head and brain.

Neurological conditions must also be ruled out.

True migraine is characterized by paroxysmal attacks of one-sided headaches. These are usually accompanied by visual disturbances and stomach and intestinal upset.

When once the diagnosis is definitely made some of the new drugs have been extremely effective.

The experimental drug prostaglandin, not yet released for public consumption, holds forth great promise for those cases unable to be controlled by available drugs.

Letters To The Editor

Dear Editor:

We would like to thank the Circleville Herald for printing our letter to teenagers last week and for giving us additional space to clarify several points that have led to some misunderstanding. The letter was written to a small percentage of students, hoping they would consider that love through respect of human life would be a more positive approach to living than promoting hatred and disrespect. The situations described were only for the purpose of showing the type of things happening, and we, unfortunately, did not check to see if any of these situations could be misleading or were based on rumored information.

Our mistake came in trying to be as brief as possible and compacting and simplifying the information gathered from across the nation, and relaying on a more local level. We had talked to students and adults in California and several areas in Ohio, read newspaper articles from AP and UPI, and watched television reports. Then, in writing the letter the way we did, it appeared that the problems were only local situations. For any distress caused by implying that a particular person or school was involved we are truly sorry, for it defeats the purpose of promoting respect.

Our schools are doing an excellent job, considering the pressures of these days. There are many fine educators and students here and across the nation. We would particularly like to commend the student body here at our own Teays Valley High School for their renewed school spirit and interest in scholastic achievement. We still feel, however, that it is a shame when a small percentage of students do not respect or care about the human rights of those people who are trying to educate them or attend to their safety. Sadly, these few don't even respect the rights of their contemporaries who have needs and emotions, either like or different from their own. As we said in our letter last week, "Respect human life no matter whose it is."

Sincerely,
Mr. and Mrs. PETER McQUAIN
Ashville, Ohio

Dear Editor:

Tuesday, February 5th at 1 p.m. on the second floor of the City Building!

This date, time and place should be kept uppermost in the minds of all residents of the Circleville Community who have ever endured the stench which polluted the area frequently during the past 18 months, especially during the warm summer months.

This date, time and place was advertised in the local newspaper on

It is very discouraging for victims of migraine headaches when treatment is not immediately remedial. It takes a great deal of trial and error to find the ideal combination of medication and psychological support to keep these headaches under control.

Our 16-year-old daughter has been menstruating since the age of 13. Now this happens every 12 or 14 days. She has been to three different doctors in the past two years.

Can something be done to lengthen her cycle?

Mrs. A.H., Mich.

Dear Mrs. H.:

The hormone imbalance and the psychological overtones associated with such a problem demand concentrated effort by one physician over an extended period of time.

Only in this way can the patient be kept under observation and the drugs that are used be balanced for her individual need. Impatience and "doctor-hopping" inevitably lead to frustrations.

In gynecological problems assiduous care and uninterrupted observation are the keystones to successful results.

A good number of hormones are available. These are used singly and together in an effort to regulate menstrual disturbances.

December 29th by the Ohio Environmental Protection Agency to be a public meeting and will consider evidence, either written or oral, from any person on compliance schedules of the Container Corporation of America. In a telephone contact with this agency I was told the topic for discussion is to be air pollution. Since most of you residents have been offended by the foul odors of the past it is hoped that you do not want such odors repeated again this summer, so please plan to attend this important meeting and make your objections known.

Sincerely,
ELEANOR W. SKAGGS
130 Dunmore Rd.

Dear Editor:

I would like to say if you have a special award column in your paper I have a name to go in it. During the two weeks before Christmas and the two weeks following, I had two grandchildren plus a daughter-in-law in the hospital and one more member of the family on the waiting list to go to the hospital.

At this time I was without transportation to and from the hospital. Due to the seriousness of the sick, my presence was required almost around the clock which caused quite a problem in transportation.

I received a phone call from two of your local citizens telling me they were on their way down here if I were to be home.

These fine people brought to me one of their cars, gas tank filled, and handed over the keys, saying "Keep it as long as you wish." So I would like to say they deserve recognition as good citizens of your town. They are Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Toland, S. Washington St. We really say thanks to fine people in a day when no one trusts anyone else. No one wants to be involved in the problems of others, these two wonderful people denied themselves so I could have.

Thank you

Man Shot To Death In Chicago Incident

CHICAGO (AP)—David A. Rowe, 21, of Cleveland, was found shot to death Monday in a north side vacant lot.

No motive was established, but police said his wallet, containing several credit cards, was found in a trash can several blocks away. They said Rowe had $7 in a pocket and was wearing a diamond ring.

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

Got Nothing For It

DEAR ABBY: I fell in love with a guy I'll call Motorhead. All he loved was his car. He lost his job and I finished making his car payments. I also paid some other bills for him, and even paid back some money he owed. My friends told me I was crazy, but I was stubborn and wouldn't listen.

Motorhead got a job, and now that he is working he is going with another girl and people say he is going to marry her. I feel like a fool but what can I do? How can I get my money back without my parents knowing? I don't want to go to court, and I don't have any kind of written "I.O.U." from this guy.

A FOOL
DEAR FOOL: Unless you have something in writing, you can't prove that Motorhead owes you anything. Call it the "tuition" you paid for your education and try to learn from it. Sorry.

DEAR ABBY: I have lived here for 30 years and my husband is a respected member of the community, so I am unable to explain why I should have this problem.

I first noticed it in the department store where I shop regularly. The minute I enter, a buzzer goes off, and the store detectives appear and stare watching me. Also, I notice the salespeople look at me suspiciously, so I don't dare even handle any merchandise.

I went to the dime store and noticed the same thing happened there, so I called for the manager and asked him why I was being watched. He very sarcastically said I wasn't, but if I had a clear conscience I had nothing to worry about. I left immediately.

Logan Firm Wins Suit Over Taxes

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP)—An Ohio clay producing company's contention that its Pennsylvania corporate income tax should be figured only on its Pennsylvania operations was upheld Monday by Commonwealth Court.

The court found that Logan Clay Products of Logan, Ohio, maintained a separate division near Kittanning in Armstrong County and need not count the over-all income in its tax return.

Under Pennsylvania law, companies with completely independent divisions in the state need not include out-of-state components in figuring their tax.

The Pennsylvania division is composed of Worthington Ceramics, which makes tiles, and Graff-Kittanning Clay Products, which makes glazed sewer pipe. Both are in Worthington, Armstrong County. The Logan plant makes unglazed sewer pipe.

Logan filed to pay $1,614 in corporate net income tax, but the state contended the company owed $6,645. The court ordered the company to pay the lower figure.

The Pennsylvania Board of Finance and Revenue had maintained that the tax should be based on the income from the company's plants in both states.

Writing for the majority, Judge Harry A. Kramer said there was no interrelationship between the operations in the two states.

ORDINANCE NO. 4-74 AN ORDINANCE TO CREATE THE POSITION OF INCOME TAX SUPERVISOR UNDER THE DIRECTION OF THE CITY TREASURER AND TO SET THE SALARY THEREFOR AND REPEALING ORDINANCE NO. 103-73 AND DECLARING AN EMERGENCY

WHEREAS, the Council of the City of Circleville desires to establish the position of Income Tax Supervisor as a full time position under the direction of the Treasurer of the City of Circleville and to perform and supervise certain duties of the Income Tax Division of the City Treasurer's Office; NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT ORDAINED BY THE COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF CIRCLEVILLE, STATE OF OHIO:

SECTION 1. That there is hereby created, within the Treasurer's Office of the City of Circleville, Ohio, the position of Income Tax Supervisor.

SECTION 2. The position of Income Tax Supervisor is responsible for supervising a section of the Income Tax Division of the City Treasurer's Office; directing the activities of the income tax section, and performing related duties as required. Said Income Tax Supervisor shall supervise the auditing of financial records of business firms and individuals to determine compliance with city income tax ordinances; supervise the examination of income tax returns and claims filed with the city; supervise the collection of income tax; supervise employees engaged in assisting taxpayers in the preparation of income tax returns; supervise the collection of delinquent income tax accounts; confer with delinquent taxpayers and set up schedules for paying back taxes, and be responsible for issuing subpoenas and summons for violators of income tax laws of the City of Circleville, Ohio.

SECTION 3. That the salary for the Income Tax Supervisor of the City of Circleville, Ohio, shall be $7,000.00 per annum, payable on the 1st and 15th days of each month from the General Revenue Fund of the City of Circleville, Ohio.

SECTION 4. That the Income Tax Supervisor shall be entitled to all benefits, including vacation pay, retirement and other fringe benefits that full time employees are granted.

SECTION 5. That the Income Tax Supervisor shall be employed by the Treasurer of the City of Circleville upon approval of Council. Ordinance No. 103-73 is hereby repealed.

SECTION 7. That Council declares this to be an emergency ordinance, necessary for the preservation of the public peace, health and safety of this city, and for the purpose of providing the Treasurer's Office of the City of Circleville with the necessary employees to carry out the function of the Income Tax Division of the City of Circleville; WHEREFORE, this ordinance shall take effect and be in force immediately upon its passage.

Farm-To-Market Combine Cutting Costs

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — A unique combine here hopes to begin early next summer a project aimed at raising prices farmers get for their products and lowering the prices the consumer pays for them.

The first move will be the opening of a neat processing plant at Columbia, to be operated as a cooperative by farmers within a 60-mile radius.

At the same time, four food outlets— at Lexington, Somerset, Ashland and Covington— will open to sell farm products to consumers, who also can join the cooperative.

And a related project already is under way to make it possible for farmers to grow some fresh vegetables in the winter through use of a greenhouse-like plastic bubble.

"Eventually, we will have six meat processing plants around the state and six retail outlets," William P. Faulkner, executive vice president of Interrelated Industries, Inc., said.

"The idea is to eliminate long distance shipping and pass on the saving to both the farmer and the consumer," he added.

Faulkner explained that present practice is for Kentucky cattle to be shipped to the Middle West, fattened there on feed lots and then be slaughtered, with the meat shipped back here.

"We'll encourage the farmers to fatten their own cattle, since the processing plant will be just a few miles from their homes," Faulkner said.

Faulkner also is president of Day Star Corp., which manufactures the plastic bubbles under which such crops as tomatoes can be grown in the winter.

"A bubble covers one-eighth of an acre or about 1,500 tomato plants and on that a man can get about the same income as he does for two to three acres of tobacco," he said.

His company has tried out the project and figures profits should range from $960 to $3,360 if the crop sells at 30 cents a pound and $4,160 to $8,360 at 40 cents a pound for each of two crops a year.

Interrelated will set up collection points throughout the state to collect the farm products, which then will be sold either through the firm's retail outlets or to commercial grocery stores for resale.

Interrelated retail outlets, to be called farm food lots, will be open to the public, but those who are members of the cooperative will get an annual dividend plus a discount on what they buy.

"We already have more than 1,000 farmers in this program, so you can see that we've got a big supply and it's getting bigger every day," Faulkner said.

"One reason why we think this is important is that more and more farmers are going out of business every day and there eventually could be a food shortage," he said.

"We feel like if we can help these people make a better profit by doing the marketing for them, we can keep people in agriculture," he added.

Day Star Corp. also has a patent on a new container for vegetables that Faulkner says can keep lettuce fresh for a month or more or hold tomatoes up to a month if it is re-cooled periodically.

"We're in the experimental stage down in Florida shipping corn to Rotterdam and grapefruit to Japan," he said.

These containers, he added, can be carried on a farm truck as a harvest is made, saving repacking time.

ORDINANCE NO. 3-74 AN ORDINANCE ACCEPTING THE PLAT OF RIDGEWOOD SUBDIVISION SECTION NO. 9 AND DEDICATING THE PUBLIC STREETS AND LANDS SHOWN THEREON

WHEREAS, the Director of Public Service and the Manager of Public Utilities have reported to Circleville City Council that all of the improvements to the land as shown on the final plat of said subdivision and described in the construction plans and specifications which are on file in the offices of the Director of Public Service and the Manager of Public Utilities have been satisfactorily completed; and

WHEREAS, L. G. Fairway Development Corporation, developers of the Ridgewood Subdivision Section No. 9 by said final plat have offered for dedication for public use certain lands for streets, public grounds and easements all as shown and described on the said final plat and recorded in Plat Book 6, Page 132 of the Pickaway County Plat Records; and

WHEREAS, Circleville City Council has previously approved for record purposes the plat for Ridgewood Subdivision Section No. 9 by passing Ordinance No. 34-73 on February 20, 1973, NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT ORDAINED BY THE COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF CIRCLEVILLE, STATE OF OHIO:

SECTION 1: That the plat of Ridgewood Subdivision Section No. 9 situated in the City of Circleville, County of Pickaway, State of Ohio, and being part of Section 17, Township 11, Range 21W, containing 2.608 acres and a certain 2.27 acre tract conveyed to the L. G. Fairway Development Corporation in Deed Book 211, Page 255, Pickaway County Deed Records, Pickaway County, Ohio and containing 2.608 acres, more or less, and recorded in Plat Book 6, Page 132 of the Pickaway County Plat Records, be and the same is hereby accepted.

SECTION 2: That the dedication to the public use of the streets, public grounds and easements as shown on the plat for Ridgewood Subdivision Section No. 9 be and the same is hereby accepted and confirmed.

SECTION 3: That the L. G. Fairway Development Corporation, developer of Ridgewood Subdivision Section No. 9 shall record a certified copy of this ordinance in the Pickaway County Plat Book, Pickaway County, Ohio, as a condition of the acceptance of the dedicated lands in said subdivision.

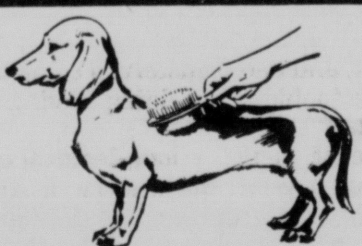

SECTION 4: That this ordinance shall take effect and be enforced from and after the earliest period allowed by law.

News Of Interest To Women

The Circleville Herald, Tuesday January 29, 1974

'Young Career Women' Theme For BPW Club

"Young Career Woman" was the theme of the Thursday dinner meeting of Circleville Business and Professional Women's Club at Pickaway Arms. Co-hostesses for the evening were JoAnn Brink, Genevra Ullman and Jean West.

Greetings were extended by Freda Collins, president who welcomed guests, Vicki Radcliff and Carol West.

Mrs. West's horoscope birthday roll call cited definite personality traits of each member.

Guest speaker was Miss Lynn Roberts, pharmacist at Risch Drug Store. Miss Roberts said pharmacy was a most liberated profession with 20 to 30 per cent of those on the job being women.

Assisted by Clarissa Talbut, Miss Brink and Mrs. Collins, Nancy Lu Conrad, membership chairman, conducted the service of initiation for three elected to membership; Margaret Bergen, receptionist and secretary for Dr. F. W. Anderson; Margaret Remy, deputy for Pickaway County Auditor and Elizabeth Alt-meyer, bookkeeper at Brown Memorial Home.

Emma Curlett, public relations chairman, explained flexible hour employment under research by BPW Foundation.

Dr. Conrad said that the display stand of organization emblems will soon be restored along the highway south of Circleville.

A communication was read from Dolores Chambers, district director, in which she urged cooperation with the Young Career Woman project and told of plans underway for the annual Spring Conference to be held in Columbus. Mrs. Collins announced the International Session is to be held Feb. 23rd-24th in Windsor, Canada.

By unanimous vote, the club endorsed Margaret Remy as a candidate for Pickaway County Auditor. For the past 15 years Mrs. Remy has worked with Marvene Rhodes, auditor, who is not seeking reelection.

Others present were: Charlotte Hill, Mary Wolfe, Leora Sayre and Louise Hill, and charter members, Marguerite Clark and Mary Howard.

Joan Lynn Leedy, Stephen Malecka Engagement Told

JOAN LYNN LEEDY

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Leedy, Route 2, Ashville are announcing the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Joan Lynn, to Stephen B. Malecka, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cyril Malecka, 34 W. Alcott Road, Columbus.

Miss Leedy is a senior at Teays Valley High School. Her fiancé is a graduate of Marion Franklin High School and is employed by Franklin County Animal Control Board.

The wedding will be an event of March 30th at the Kingdom Hall of Jehovah Witnesses, Grove City.

Events For 1974 Discussed During Art League Meeting

Plans for the coming year were discussed during a recent meeting of Circleville Art League in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Chandler, Route 1.

Bill Chandler, as program chairman, led the planning for the year. There will be visits to an artist's studio and galleries and have dinner in Columbus. Several interesting workshops and lectures are also planned.

The annual Spring Show was discussed and a suggestion made to include photography as a new category for the show which will be in May.

Exhibits by members were arranged. The Circleville Herald and L-K Restaurant are the regular places work may be seen between shows. Members reported a number of sales from these exhibits.

Mr. Chandler presented a film strip and record on the life of Vincent Van Gough. This was an informative program which showed some of his lesser known work as well as the familiar sunflowers and landscapes. Mr. Chandler explained how the style of Van Gough and the impressionists led the way to contemporary art.

Homemade cookies and coffee were served after the meeting by Debbie Chandler.

Attending the meeting were: Evelyn Bastian, president; Bill Chandler, vice president; Vally Rahe, recording secretary; Ju-Lea McQuain, corresponding secretary; Lisa Yaple, Gloria Snodgrass, Martha Reid, Teda Theis, Linda Swazey, Audrey Turner and Eleanor Flierl who became a member, and a guest, Louis Snodgrass.

Couple Celebrating 40th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Vincent, 344 Watt St., are celebrating their 40th wedding anniversary today.

The parents of Gaylord Hall, 124½ W. Main St. and Lois Downing of Sedalia, exchanged marriage vows in New Holland.

Berger Hospital Guilds Name Chairmen For 1974 Follies

Chairmen for the 1974 Follies were named during the Thursday evening meeting of Berger Hospital General Guild at the hospital.

Mrs. Linda Dunkle, director of physical services, discussed the recently approved expansion plans of the hospital. She expressed appreciation for all the help given annually by the guilds.

Mrs. Jerry Walters reported that the annual Christmas Bazaar netted almost $2400. All guilds and individuals participating were congratulated for their efforts.

Mrs. Robert Cole announced the Gift Shop sale netted over $2200. She also asked for volunteers to work two hours per month in the shop at the hospital. Interested persons are asked to contact Mrs. J. L. Chilcote.

Mrs. Carl Russell, Mrs. William Parker, Mrs. Jerry Leist, Mrs. Tim Stonerock and Mrs. Jay Dorff were appointed to the nominating committee. Mrs. Richard Huggins will serve as an alternate.

Follies committees are: Mrs. Nelson Stevens and Mrs. Robert Liggett, co-chairmen; Mrs. James Hall, treasurer; Mrs. Robert Hedges, Mrs. James Edman and Mrs. F. C. Russell, program advertising; Mrs. Richard Theis, Mrs. William Shanning, program layout; Mrs. William Myers, patrons; Mrs. David Gillespie and Mrs. Jack Hughes, tickets.

Mrs. John Carter and Mrs. Paul Roan, makeup; Mrs. Archie Ward, publicity; Mrs. Jerry Miller and Mrs.

Don Greenlee, costumes; Mrs. John Farthing, talent; Mrs. Vincent DeFrank, props; Mrs. Michael Wilson, contest; Guild 44, refreshments; Mrs. James Reese and Mrs. F. C. Russell, cabaret; Nelson Embrey, technical and William Chandler, scenery.

Mrs. David Gillespie announced that general admission tickets for the Follies will be on sale after Feb. 22nd and may be purchased from guild members. The tickets may then be exchanged for reserved seats between March 20th-27th at the Second National Branch office on N. Court St.

Following the meeting coffee and cookies were served by members of Guild 49.

CAC Discusses Movies, Television

Child Advancement Club held its January meeting recently in the home of Mrs. Donald Pontious, 507 Edgewood Drive.

Following a discussion on recent movies and television shows, the club agreed more parents should be aware of what children are viewing.

Mrs. William McGinnis reported on Spring Conference progress and said that invitations to state officers have been mailed.

For the February meeting the club will attend Lenten services and go to the home of Mrs. Leroy Newlon, Route 3, for a business meeting.

A silent auction was held as a money making project and a dessert course was served by Mrs. Pontious.

Circleville Branch AAUW Told History Of Cablevision

Circleville Branch, American Assn. of University Women, were told of cablevision in Circleville during its recent meeting in the meeting room of Pickaway County Historical Society.

Guest speaker, William Randells, told the history of cable TV. It had its beginning in Oregon in 1955 and later in Pennsylvania.

He said that the local cablevision will have a 28 channel capacity. Area residents will be able to receive two educational channels, 34 from the Ohio State University and 20 from Ohio University, three regular channels, 4, 6 and 10 and three independent channels, 19 from Cincinnati and 43 and 51 from Cleveland.

Mr. Randells explained the rules governing cablevision in this area as a part of the Columbus market area. The

Girl Scout Cookie Sale To Begin

Lemon creme, a new flavor, tops the five varieties of Girl Scout cookies soon to be available for ordering in Circleville and throughout Pickaway County.

From Feb. 2nd-Feb. 10th Girl Scout salesgirls will be knocking on doors to take orders for candy-like mints, crunchy wafers with a minty coating; Scot-Teas, little shortbread cookies lightly topped with sugar; Savannahs with the taste of peanut butter, chocolate and vanilla creme packages and the newest delightful lemon creme cookies.

Mrs. Marian Fischer, 542 Garden Parkway, is the local cookie sales chairman. Anyone not being contacted and wishing to place an order may call her at 474-8494.

New Vienna Explosions Investigated

NEW VIENNA, Ohio (AP) — Investigation continued today into the series of explosions which rocked this Clinton County community of 900 Monday morning.

No one was injured by the five blasts, apparently caused by fumes from gasoline which firemen had flushed into a storm sewer while cleaning up a tanker truck overflow at a bulk oil plant.

Fire authorities said a bar and grill was hardest hit by the 8:45 a.m. explosions. Several homes were lifted from their foundations, windows were shattered and walls blown out.

A school was closed and a number of homes evacuated, according to Assistant Fire Chief William McHane.

No one was in any of the buildings damaged, he said.

There were no reports of fire. Firemen said the explosions were apparently triggered by a furnace spark.

More than a block was cordoned off and four families were removed from their homes until further investigation.

News Of Interest To Women

6 The Circleville Herald, Tuesday January 29, 1974

'Young Career Women' Theme For BPW Club

"Young Career Woman" was the theme of the Thursday dinner meeting of Circleville Business and Professional Women's Club at Pickaway Arms. Co-hostesses for the evening were JoAnn Brink, Geneva Ullman and Jean West.

Greetings were extended by Freda Collins, president who welcomed guests, Vicki Radcliff and Carol West.

Mrs. West's horoscope birthday roll call cited definite personality traits of each member.

Guest speaker was Miss Lynn Roberts, pharmacist at Risch Drug Store. Miss Roberts said pharmacy was a most liberated profession with 20 to 30 per cent of those on the job being women.

Assisted by Clarissa Talbut, Miss Brink and Mrs. Collins, Nancy Lu Conrad, membership chairman, conducted the service of initiation for three elected to membership; Margaret Bergen, receptionist and secretary for Dr. F. W. Anderson; Margaret Remy, deputy for Pickaway County Auditor and Elizabeth Alt-meyer, bookkeeper at Brown Memorial Home.

Emma Curlett, public relations chairman, explained flexible hour employment under research by BPW Foundation.

Dr. Conrad said that the display stand of organization emblems will soon be restored along the highway south of Circleville.

A communication was read from Dolores Chambers, district director, in which she urged cooperation with the Young Career Woman project and told of plans underway for the annual Spring Conference to be held in Columbus. Mrs. Collins announced the International Session is to be held Feb. 23rd-24th in Windsor, Canada.

By unanimous vote, the club endorsed Margaret Remy as a candidate for Pickaway County Auditor. For the past 15 years Mrs. Remy has worked with Marvne Rhodes, auditor, who is not seeking reelection.

Others present were: Charlotte Hill, Mary Wolfe, Leora Sayre and Louise Hill, and charter members, Marguerite Clark and Mary Howard.

Joan Lynn Leedy, Stephen Malecka Engagement Told

JOAN LYNN LEEDY

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Leedy, Route 2, Ashville are announcing the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Joan Lynn, to Stephen B. Malecka, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cyril Malecka, 34 W. Alcott Road, Columbus.

Miss Leedy is a senior at Teays Valley High School. Her fiancé is a graduate of Marion Franklin High School and is employed by Franklin County Animal Control Board.

The wedding will be an event of March 30th at the Kingdom Hall of Jehovah Witnesses, Grove City.

Berger Hospital Guilds Name Chairmen For 1974 Follies

Chairmen for the 1974 Follies were named during the Thursday evening meeting of Berger Hospital General Guild at the hospital.

Mrs. Linda Dunkle, director of physical services, discussed the recently approved expansion plans of the hospital. She expressed appreciation for all the help given annually by the guilds.

Mrs. Jerry Walters reported that the annual Christmas Bazaar netted almost $2400. All guilds and individuals participating were congratulated for their efforts.

Mrs. Robert Cole announced the Gift Shop sale netted over $2200. She also asked for volunteers to work two hours per month in the shop at the hospital. Interested persons are asked to contact Mrs. J. L. Chilcote.

Mrs. Carl Russell, Mrs. William Parker, Mrs. Jerry Leist, Mrs. Tim Stonerock and Mrs. Jay Dorff were appointed to the nominating committee. Mrs. Richard Huggins will serve as an alternate.

Follies committees are: Mrs. Nelson Stevens and Mrs. Robert Liggett, co-chairmen; Mrs. James Hall, treasurer; Mrs. Robert Hedges, Mrs. James Edman and Mrs. F. C. Russell, program advertising; Mrs. Richard Theis, Mrs. William Shanning, program layout; Mrs. William Myers, patrons; Mrs. David Gillespie and Mrs. Jack Hughes, tickets.

Mrs. John Carter and Mrs. Paul Roan, makeup; Mrs. Archie Ward, publicity; Mrs. Jerry Miller and Mrs.

Don Greenlee, costumes; Mrs. John Farthing, talent; Mrs. Vincent DeFrank, props; Mrs. Michael Wilson, contest; Guild 44, refreshments; Mrs. James Reese and Mrs. F. C. Russell, cabaret; Nelson Embrey, technical and William Chandler, scenery.

Mrs. David Gillespie announced that general admission tickets for the Follies will be on sale after Feb. 22nd and may be purchased from guild members. The tickets may then be exchanged for reserved seats between March 20th-27th at the Second National Branch office on N. Court St.

Following the meeting coffee and cookies were served by members of Guild 49.

CAC Discusses Movies, Television

Child Advancement Club held its January meeting recently in the home of Mrs. Donald Pontious, 507 Edgewood Drive.

Following a discussion on recent movies and television shows, the club agreed more parents should be aware of what children are viewing.

Mrs. William McGinnis reported on Spring Conference progress and said that invitations to state officers have been mailed.

For the February meeting the club will attend Lenten services and go to the home of Mrs. Leroy Newlon, Route 3, for a business meeting.

A silent auction was held as a money making project and a dessert course was served by Mrs. Pontious.

Circleville Branch AAUW Told History Of Cablevision

Circleville Branch, American Assn. of University Women, were told of cablevision in Circleville during its recent meeting in the meeting room of Pickaway County Historical Society.

Guest speaker, William Randells, told the history of cable TV. It had its beginning in Oregon in 1955 and later in Pennsylvania.

He said that the local cablevision will have a 28 channel capacity. Area residents will be able to receive two educational channels, 34 from the Ohio State University and 20 from Ohio University, three regular channels, 4, 6 and 10 and three independent channels, 19 from Cincinnati and 43 and 51 from Cleveland.

Mr. Randells explained the rules governing cablevision in this area as a part of the Columbus market area. The owner of the local cablevision may carry the main three networks, any educational channels plus three independent channels. It also will be available for local use and public access.

The remainder of the channel capacity is to be used for lease purposes by industry or the city. Another rule is that if a program is carried on a major network then the same program must be blacked out on the independent station.

During the business meeting presided over by Jean Droste, a report on the Equal Rights Amendment Rally was given by Marie Gerhardt. Also attending the rally were Jean Droste and Mary Jane Dean.

Lucille Scott announced Legislative Day is March 20th. Marsha Schneider asked for volunteers to help sort and distribute books for the local RIF project.

Mrs. Droste announced the nominating committee to select a new program, vice president, membership chairman and treasurer. Chairman for the committee is Sharon Blecha.

Refreshments were served by Irene Apostolakis, chairman; Ula Jean Metzler, Mary Scothorn, Faye Sowers, Janet McIlwaine, Ruth Montelius, Jean Milburn, Karen Rose, Peggy Smith and Betty Bobo.

Party Honors Melissa Frazier

Miss Joyce Frazier, Route 1, Stoutsville hosted a birthday party recently in her home honoring Melissa Jo Frazier.

Games were played with prizes awarded to Tracy Gloyd, Betsy Cyrus and Daryl Wolfe.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Emmett Frazier, Mrs. Neil Frazier, Mrs. Dale Wolfe, Mrs. Glenn Leatherwood and the hostess.

Guests were: Tracy Gloyd, Stephen Cyrus, Betsy Cyrus, Cami Peters, Deanna Wolfe, Daryl Wolfe, Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Leatherwood, Creaton Kraft, Miss Evelyn Kraft, Mr. and Mrs. Neil Frazier, Mrs. Dale Wolfe and Mr. and Mrs. Emmett Frazier.

Events For 1974 Discussed During Art League Meeting

Plans for the coming year were discussed during a recent meeting of Circleville Art League in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Chandler, Route 1.

Bill Chandler, as program chairman, led the planning for the year. There will be visits to an artist's studio and galleries and have dinner in Columbus. Several interesting workshops and lectures are also planned.

The annual Spring Show was discussed and a suggestion made to include photography as a new category for the show which will be in May.

Exhibits by members were arranged. The Circleville Herald and L-K Restaurant are the regular places work may be seen between shows. Members reported a number of sales from these exhibits.

Mr. Chandler presented a film strip and record on the life of Vincent Van Gough. This was an informative program which showed some of his lesser known work as well as the familiar sunflowers and landscapes. Mr. Chandler explained how the style of Van Gough and the impressionists led the way to contemporary art.

Homemade cookies and coffee were served after the meeting by Debbie Chandler.

Attending the meeting were: Evelyn Bastian, president; Bill Chandler, vice president; Vally Rahe, recording secretary; Ju-Lea McQuain, corresponding secretary; Lisa Yaple, Gloria Snodgrass, Martha Reid, Teda Theis, Linda Swazey, Audrey Turner and Eleanor Flierl who became a member, and a guest, Louis Snodgrass.

Couple Celebrating 40th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Vincent, 344 Watt St., are celebrating their 40th wedding anniversary today.

The parents of Gaylord Hall, 124½ W. Main St. and Lois Downing of Sedalia, exchanged marriage vows in New Holland.

Girl Scout Cookie Sale To Begin

Lemon creme, a new flavor, tops the five varieties of Girl Scout cookies soon to be available for ordering in Circleville and throughout Pickaway County.

From Feb. 2nd-Feb. 10th Girl Scout salesgirls will be knocking on doors to take orders for candy-like mints, crunchy wafers with a minty coating; Scot-Teas, little shortbread cookies lightly topped with sugar; Savannahs with the taste of peanut butter, chocolate and vanilla creme packages and the newest delightful lemon creme cookies.

Arab Rulers Torn By Temptations

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

Arab oil rulers act like they're torn between an almost irresistible temptation to jolt the global economic system and fear of what the consequences might be should they go too far.

Sheik Ahmed Zaki Yamani, the astute Saudi Arabian oil minister, has been brandishing a fearsome bludgeon: if the industrialized nations think they've got trouble now, suppose the other Third World countries gang up with their raw materials the way the oil producers did?

On the other hand, Yamani noted that the advanced nations have only to fall in line with Arab goals to lessen their troubles.

"What is at stake today is the revision of an entire economic system which developed at a time when we did not exist on the stage, and by 'we' I mean the developing countries, most of which were colonies," he said.

"Above all, one should consider a better payment for raw materials flowing incessantly into industrialized countries which are purchased at very low prices, at prices which sometimes do not even make possible payment of proper wages."

Given peace — meaning given acceptance of Arab demands against Israel — the Arabs and the advanced countries should get along fine because "you have what we need and we have what you need," he argued.

The Arab oil rulers depend heavily on the West not only for technology and agricultural goods, but for protection. King Faisal would see little future in being isolated and thrown upon the tender mercies of Arab radicals abetted by the Soviet bloc. It could be tantamount to royal suicide to contribute to economic chaos in the advanced countries.

What the Saudis seem to want is double insurance. By wielding the oil weapon they can gain enough concessions to nullify the radical threat to dynastic Arab regimes. But they would stop short of depriving themselves of the implicit protection of the advanced world.

Mild weather is continuing to hold sway across the state, but cooler temperatures are on the way. Lows before daybreak today generally were in the 30s with a little light rain in the eastern counties.

By this afternoon highs were expected to reach the 40s north to the 50s south. Lows tonight were to be in the upper 20s and 30s.

Rainfall was general across the state over the past 24 hours, but amounts varied widely with Canton, Akron and Dayton getting only a few hundredths of an inch while southwestern Ohio got up to three fourths of an inch. The rain changed to snow in the northern counties, but amounts were quite light.

Walkers Host FB Council

The Meat and Grain Producers Farm Bureau Council met Saturday at the home of Bill and Sue Walker, Route 2.

The discussion for the evening was on how will environmental controls influence farming.

Guests for the evening were Dale and Jo Ann Bower, Don and Joyce Martin.

Members present were Paul and Carol Azbell, Jeff and Shelia Writsel, Dave and Judy Petty, Nathan and Ruth Wilson, Kim Writsel, Dave and Julie Walker.

Bower, the president of the Pickaway County Farm Bureau, asked council members for suggestions of projects needed to be done by the Farm Bureau. The Feb. 23 meeting will be in the home of Dave and Judy Petty.

Dick Tootle Named To State Committee

Dick T. Tootle, Pickaway County Commissioner, has been named to the executive advisory committee of the Ohio County Commissioners Assn.

Red Cross Board Meeting Held

The Pickaway County Chapter American Red Cross held the first Board Meeting of 1974 on Wednesday night at the Chapter House.

John Stibelton and Lowell Ferguson reported on their recent course at Hocking State Park which qualifies them now as instructor trainers of the new First Aid Material. A meeting is planned for all Pickaway County First Aid Instructors for Feb. 10 at 2 p.m. at the Chapter House in order to make arrangements for the retraining of all instructors in the use of the new Standard First Aid materials. The board acknowledged the need to recruit more instructors in order to have sufficient coverage for the county.

With the increased quota of 150 pints for each of the 1974 visits of the Bloodmobile, ways of handling and improving plans and the importance of the coordination of industry participation was discussed. Tight advance scheduling for the January visit assured an even flow of donors through the day and enabled the county to meet the quota for the day.

Mrs. Anne Pfeleger, volunteer chairman noted that adult volunteers are now serving at the desk at Berger Hospital in addition to their other duties.

Mrs. Delores North reported that a successful meeting of the Red Cross Youth was recently held with Mrs. Janet Garlock, youth director of the Columbus Area Chapter as speaker. Bonnie Hall was elected Youth President and the girls planned for expanded service to the community. They also recognized the need to recruit boys as volunteers in many areas of service.

The date for the annual meeting of the chapter was tentatively set for May 22.

County Cagers In League Tilts

County cage action this week will see Teays Valley hosting Bexley tonight and traveling to Grandview Friday night while Westfall will be at home with Paint Valley and Liberty Union will visit Logan Elm in other Friday night encounters.

The undefeated Vikings are 13-0 on the season and hold a commanding lead in the Metropolitan League with a mark of 11-0. They are currently in fourth place in the Associated Press AA Ohio cage poll and have been gaining ground on the poll leaders in recent weeks.

Teays Valley will have its hands full this week with an out-of-league clash with Bexley tonight and a league battle with Grandview Friday night.

Bexley is sporting a 5-2 mark in the Mid-Eight League which puts the Lions in a first place tie with Urbana. They hold a 7-7 mark on the season but most of their competition has come against strong AAA schools.

The Lions employ a run and shoot offense with balanced scoring. They have several cagers hitting in double figures and can light up the scoreboard. Defensively, they will utilize a full court press and switch into a sticky man to man to thwart the opponents.

It will be another big one for the Vikings Friday night when they travel to Grandview. The Bobcats are currently holding down second spot in the Metro with a mark of 8-3. Their overall record is 12-3.

Teays Valley had already clinched a tie for the league crown and a win over Grandview will assure the Vikings of an outright title.

Grandview is a good club with depth and balance and are always tough on the home court. The Bobcats will employ a 2-2-1 press, a 1-2-2 zone and a man to man in an effort to stop the high flying Vikings.

"We will have our work cut out for us this week in an effort to stay undefeated and also clinch the league championship," Teays Valley coach Bob Hoover commented. "Everyone is looking for you when you are unbeaten and we will have to play them one at a time."

Jeff Anderson, who has been having trouble with a foot infection, is back at full strength but Jay Brinker has a badly sprained ankle and it is doubtful if he will see action Tuesday. But, the Vikings have high hopes that he will be ready Friday night.

Lee Stiles has been coming off the bench for the Vikings and has picked up a lot of slack with his scoring and rebounding.

Starting for the Vikings will be: Craig Pontius and Terry Lambert at the guards, Jim Logsdon at center with Terry Collins and Stiles working up front.

Westfall will be out to improve its 3-10 record when the Mustangs host Paint Valley Friday night. They are 0-3 in Scioto Valley Conference play and will be out to break into the win column against the Bearcats.

Mike Shoemaker is the big gun for the Bearcats and has been scorching the nets with an average of 28 points a game. They like to run but will also use a patterned offense when needed.

Westfall has been plagued by injuries this season and is still having its problems. Jay Clark has been out with a badly sprained knee and is doubtful for Friday's action. Jeff Karshner also suffered a knee injury against Liberty Union and his status remains questionable.

Brad Beatty, Dave Shannon and Joe Angles will start for the Mustangs and the rest of lineup will depend on how the injured players shape up.

Logan Elm will be looking for the winning trail against Liberty Union after dropping the last four outings.

The Braves are sporting a 6-8 record on the season and are 3-7 in Mid-State play.

Liberty Union holds a 5-8 mark overall and is 5-5 in Mid-State action.

Logan Elm just hasn't been able to put it all together recently but has proven it has the guns in earlier wins.

The Braves will be going all out to avenge an earlier loss to Liberty Union.

Nazarene Teens In Cage Finals

The local Nazarene Teens basketball team downed Jackson, 59-26, in the semi finals of the Central Ohio District tournament Saturday. They will meet Marion First Nazarene Saturday in the tournament finals.

Smith Named Coach

ATLANTA (AP) — Georgia Tech assistant coach Homer Smith has been named head football coach at Army, the Atlanta Constitution said in today's editions.

Official announcement will be made later in the week, the newspaper said.

Army fired Tom Cahill soon after the Cadets ended a dismal 0-10 football campaign, which included a 51-0 shelling by archrival Navy. Cahill had charged that his dismissal was ordered by Army officials in Washington.

Boilermakers Top Buckeyes, 67-65

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The Ohio State crowd's boos worked in reverse on Frank Kendrick, the hero of Purdue's 67-65 Big Ten basketball victory over Ohio State Monday night.

"I love it in situations like this, especially when the crowd boos. I think I would have had more pressure at home," said the Boilermaker senior moments after his two free throws with one second left.

The 6-foot-5 forward calmly sank both ends of a one-and-one foul situation, despite the jeers of more than 10,000 and kept Purdue unbeaten in the conference.

The Boilermakers, 12-5 for all games, are off to a 6-0 start atop the Big Ten. Ohio State dipped to 1-4 and 6-9 records.

"I wasn't nervous," said Kendrick, who scored 17 points. He was fouled in the Purdue front court by Wardell Jackson, trying to foil a last-second Boilermaker shot.

"All I could think of was Ohio State beating me the other four games in my career," Kendrick said.

"I just as soon see him up there in a clutch situation as anyone," Purdue Coach Fred Schaus said.

"It's as juicy a win as I've had in two years at Purdue," the former Los Angeles Lakers coach and general manager said. Especially the way we came back to win."

Purdue had blown leads of 14 points in the first half and 10 points with less than 10 minutes to play. Steve Wenner's basket with 2:18 to go gave the Buckeyes a 64-63 edge.

Bruce Parkinson, who led Purdue with 18 points, put the Boilermakers back on top 65-64 with two fouls nine seconds later. Wenner's foul shot tied it at 65-65 with 1:43 to go.

Freshman Larry Bolden, Ohio State's top scorer with 18 points, missed two free throws with four seconds to play.

Purdue grabbed the rebound and set up the last-second play that took the ball to Kendrick.

"We wanted to put moderate pressure on them, especially on the inbound pass. We didn't want a long pass," said Ohio State Coach Fred Taylor.

A dejected Taylor added, "To be decent, you've got to split the close games. We haven't won a close one yet.

The Buckeyes have lost seven of their nine decisions by five points or less.

Little Mustangs Win Cage Tilts

Westfall's seventh and eighth grade cagers both came up with overtime wins over Zane Trace Monday in games played at Jackson School.

The seventh graders won, 24-17, while the eighth graders copped a 36-34 decision.

Leading the seventh graders was Bruce Starkey with nine points, Dan Schliech had eight, George Kern three, H.L. Gibson two while Tom Adams and Greg Elliott each tallied one. Randy Parsons netted 10 for Zane Trace.

Jeff Mowery led the Westfall eighth graders with nine markers, Mike Hurley had seven, Herb Picklesimer six, Larry List five, Randy Darst and Keith Kern each had four and Shawn McPherson netted one. Hinton had 14 and Tim Street eight for Zane Trace.

Both Westfall squads will be in action Wednesday against Huntington at Jackson School.

New League Signs 3 Picks

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — On the eve of the National Football League's college player draft, the upstart World Football League has signed three prime prospects and says it wants the NFL to take note.

"This ought to shake them up in New York," WFL President Gary Davidson said Monday after the league's Southern California franchise came to terms with UCLA running backs James McAliter and Kermit Johnson and University of Southern California offensive tackle Booker Brown.

Ten players in the National League batted .300 or better during 1973, led by Pete Rose's .338.

The American League had seven .300 hitters in 1973, paced by Rod Carew's .350.

Ali Tops Frazier In Big Bout

NEW YORK (AP) — "Ali! Ali! Ali!" The yells of the crowd rolled around the rafters of Madison Square Garden and played a song for the ears of proud Muhammad Ali.

Dancing, jabbing, playing a deadly tune on the profile of Joe Frazier like a ring Paderewski, the quick-fisted descendant of a Kentucky slave avenged an earlier defeat at the hands of the one-time world champion and fought his way back near the pinnacle of the sport.

MUHAMMAD ALI

Unanimous winner in a 12-round slugfest that brought a crowd of 20,748 to its feet and thrilled the millions of Ali supporters throughout the world,

Muhammad stood out today as the No. 1 threat to the heavyweight crown held by big George Foreman.

"George Foreman is a sissy fighter," Ali said, tauntingly. "He fights like a girl. Joe Frazier is a good fighter. This was a great event. 'I think we should fight again.'"

This is a matter that is to be decided by the men in the back room — the lawyers, the managers, the auditors. But one thing is certain. Heavyweight boxing is alive again, because Ali is back in full cry.

Foreman, who slugged Frazier to the canvas six times and won the heavyweight crown in a second-round knockout a year ago in Jamaica, will meet Ken Norton, who broke Ali's jaw and split two decisions with Muhammad, in a title defense at Caracas, Venezuela, March 26.

Bob Arum, who is Ali's lawyer and head of the agency that handled the world-wide television rights to Monday night's fight, would like to match Ali and the Foreman-Norton winner in the spring.

Normally, Ali, because of the heavy income tax bite, would be better off to postpone such a fight until next year. But Ali will be 33 then, going on 34, older, slower and less sharp.

A "rubber meeting" between the plodding, aggressive Frazier and the nimble-footed, sniping Ali conceivably could be an alternative.

"I want him again — you better believe it," Frazier, a gracious loser said after the fight. "One more time."

"I think I won, but it could have gone either way. I hurt him more than he hurt me. He was wrestling and holding on."

Ali, a bombastic, bragging challenger, was a chastened winner. "I'm not gonna duck Joe," he said.

"I'm not gonna be like Foreman. I thought Joe was finished. He surprised me. He was much better than in the first fight."

"I think he deserves another chance. This fight can't be topped by any other fight."

No one in the packed arena and perhaps no one in the vast unseen audience around the world appeared disinclined to dispute it.

It was another great fight between two different types of fighter — the slugger against the master craftsman — but it had a different ending. In the first fight, March 8, 1971, when the two were unbeaten champions, Frazier was the unanimous 15-round winner.

In Monday night's 12-round, the two judges gave Ali a wide edge; Tony Castellano 74-1 and Jack Gordon 8-4, while Tony Perez scored it 6-5-1, all for Ali.

A random poll of writers at ringside had it 18-4 for Ali, with one even.

Ali, 32, came out dancing and flicking that long left of his like a serpent's tongue. Frazier, 30, bearded, grunting and snorting like an angry bear, came out flailing away, disdaining any punches thrown his way.

Ali, 212, took the first two rounds handily, beating a tattoo on Frazier's angry face.

"I'm gonna get you," snarled Frazier in the third. It was a round he won, twice jarring Ali's head back with vicious left hooks and pounding telling blows into Muhammad's midsection.

Ali continued weaving, darting, poking. They seemed to be harmless shots but they landed flush on Frazier's glowering face and they began to take effect.

Ali appeared to win the fourth, fifth and sixth rounds. He was an evasive target. Frazier, 209, swung wildly, connected occasionally, missed often.

In the sixth round, a lip reader could see Frazier snort, "I'm gonna get you." Before he would get the words out, Ali shot a blood red glove flush to his snarling mouth.

Frazier, obviously irked at his failure to drive home a telling or a knockout blow in the early rounds, picked up momentum in the seventh. He danced and taunted Ali, nailed Muhammad with thunderous left hooks.

Frazier fought well in the seventh and eighth, maybe winning both, as Ali showed signs of tiring. Ali became flat-footed. He moved with less agility. He took more punishment and administered less.

In the ninth round, Frazier grinned at Ali and motioned to him, "Come on, let's fight."

Swinging wildly, never giving ground, he brought blood to Ali's nose. He spit some blood from his mouth himself. But Ali hung on, tying him up and pecking away at his foe like a gifted swordsman.

Frazier remained the aggressor. He kept coming forward like an angry bull. He snorted. He puffed. He swung. Ali jabbed, poked, stung his man.

"Float like a butterfly, sting like a bee."

The old Ali adage of strategy was never practiced more skillfully.

Then it was over — Ali by a unanimous decision.

It was a long road back for Ali, who had his crown snatched from him and who was widely abused for his failure to accept the draft and go into the Vietnamese war.

Later, when the war became unpopular, Ali's own popularity soared. Many have acclaimed him the world's outstanding sports personality.

UCLA Regains No. 1 Position In Cage Ratings

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

UCLA is back in its customary No. 1 spot in the Associated Press college basketball poll.

The Bruins, who fell into the No. 2 position for the first time in three years last week, reclaimed the top spot by a wide margin today in the wake of Saturday's convincing 94-75 victory over Notre Dame. UCLA, 15-1, picked up 51 to 52 first-place votes from a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters, and piled up 1,038 total points.

The Irish, who snapped the Bruins' record 88-game win streak Jan. 19th with a 71-70 victory and took over the No. 1 position in the poll last week, fell to third this time around. One voter, unconvinced by UCLA's latest victory, gave Notre Dame the remaining first-place ballot.

North Carolina State, 13-1 after beating North Carolina and Purdue, moved up one spot to second. The Wolfpack collected 894 points, as compared to 864 points for the third-place Irish.

North Carolina remained fourth with 668 points. The Tar Heels, 13-2, followed up their loss to North Carolina State with a win over Maryland. Marquette, 16-1 after topping Long Beach State and Chicago-Loyola, was up one place to No. 5 with 565 points.

Maryland, 11-3, dropped one notch to No. 6 after beating Canisius and bowing to North Carolina. Vanderbilt, 14-1, maintained the No. 7 position with victories over Tennessee and Mississippi.

Alabama, 13-2, advanced from No. 9 to No. 8 by virtue of wins over Kentucky, Georgia Tech and Georgia. Providence, 15-2, dropped one spot to No. 9 despite victories over Boston College and Rhode Island. And Long Beach State, 14-2, held onto the No. 10 spot after losing to Marquette and beating California-Irvine and Northern Illinois.

Southern California topped the second ten, followed by Indiana, 12th; Pittsburgh, 13th; South Carolina, 14th; Louisville, 15th; Wisconsin, 16th; New Mexico, 17th; Kansas, 18th; Oral Roberts, 19th; and Michigan, 20th.

Bengals Go After Big Men

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Cincinnati Bengals coach Paul Brown, with an admitted preference for brawny linemen, pondered possibilities today in the National Football League draft amid rumors his No. 1 choice of 1972, defensive end Sherman White, has asked to be traded.

White has reportedly informed the club of his desire to return to the West Coast where he grew up. He was an All-American at the University of California.

Brown huddled with scouting personnel late Monday night and could not be reached for comment on the report.

Earlier he hinted he might be shopping for non-linemen for the second straight year. The Bengals tabbed wide receiver Isaac Curtis as their top choice last year and followed with two more receivers.

"I've always been a meat and potatoes man, meaning those big up-front guys. That's all we took for the first five years," said Brown.

"But we've reached the stage now where we can afford to go for the skilled position," said the 65-year-old veteran, now the dean of NFL coaches.

Some sources said the Bengals may be leaning toward more depth in the defensive secondary. There were indications Brown might be eyeing a new punter with the decline of Dave Lewis, whose average has dropped almost two yards each of the last four seasons.

Vikings Move To 4th In AA Cage Poll

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Canton McKinley, Wellsville and Mansfield St. Peter's maintained healthy margins today in The Associated Press weekly Ohio high school basketball ratings.

Canton McKinley, the Class AAA pacesetter all season, collected 296 points. The Bulldogs have won 14 games in a row and carried a 51-point margin over runnerup Kettering Alter, 13-0.

Class AA frontrunner Wellsville, 12-0, piled up 258 points to 257 for No. 2 Akron Manchester, 13-0 and the leader earlier in the season.

Mansfield St. Peter's, the Class A leader three of the four weeks, earned 232 points, 25 in front of second-place Sebring, 11-1. St. Peter's had a 13-1 record.

It was the most formful week of the season for the statewide panel of sports writers and broadcasters. Only one new team, Sugar Creek Garaway in Class A, cropped up among the top tens in the three classes.

Garaway was a rousing 63-42 victory over Gnadenhutten Indian Valley South last week, knocking the Rebels from the fourth spot to 16th this week among the small schools. Garaway was No. 10.

In Class AAA, unbeaten Springfield North exchanged spots with once-beaten Boardman, taking over the No. 3 position.

Chillicothe was fifth, Dayton Dunbar sixth, Warren Western Reserve seventh, Cincinnati LaSalle eighth, Hamilton Taft ninth and defending state tournament ruler Cincinnati Elder tenth.

Elder fell four spots after losing a 58-49 overtime verdict to LaSalle.

In Class A, Newark Licking Valley moved from fourth to third and then, in order, came Ashville Teays Valley, Genoa, Columbus Mohawk, Millersburg West Holmes, Waverly, Louisville Aquinas and Canton Lehman.

In Class A, Lorain Clearview was No. 3, followed by Cleveland Lutheran East, Sidney Lehman, Canal Winchester, Greenwich South Central, Pittsburg Franklin-Monroe, Marion Pleasant and Garaway.

Canal Winchester, 12-1, made the week's biggest move among the Class A top ten, jumping from tenth last week.

Ali Tops Frazier In Big Bout

NEW YORK (AP) — "Ali! Ali! Ali!" The yells of the crowd rolled around the rafters of Madison Square Garden and played a song for the ears of proud Muhammad Ali.

Dancing, jabbing, playing a deadly tune on the profile of Joe Frazier like a ring Paderewski, the quick-fisted descendant of a Kentucky slave avenged an earlier defeat at the hands of the one-time world champion and fought his way back near the pinnacle of the sport.

MUHAMMAD ALI

Unanimous winner in a 12-round slugfest that brought a crowd of 20,748 to its feet and thrilled the millions of Ali supporters throughout the world,

Muhammad stood out today as the No. 1 threat to the heavyweight crown held by big George Foreman.

"George Foreman is a sissy fighter," Ali said, tauntingly. "He fights like a girl. Joe Frazier is a good fighter. This was a great event."

"I think we should fight again."

This is a matter that is to be decided by the men in the back room — the lawyers, the managers, the auditors. But one thing is certain. Heavyweight boxing is alive again, because Ali is back in full cry.

Foreman, who slugged Frazier to the canvas six times and won the heavyweight crown in a second-round knockout a year ago in Jamaica, will meet Ken Norton, who broke Ali's jaw and split two decisions with Muhammad, in a title defense at Caracas, Venezuela, March 26.

Bob Arum, who is Ali's lawyer and head of the agency that handled the world-wide television rights to Monday night's fight, would like to match Ali and the Foreman-Norton winner in the spring.

Normally, Ali, because of the heavy income tax bite, would be better off to postpone such a fight until next year. But Ali will be 33 then, going on 34, older, slower and less sharp.

A "rubber meeting" between the plodding, aggressive Frazier and the nimble-footed, sniping Ali conceivably could be an alternative.

"I want him again — you better believe it," Frazier, a gracious loser said after the fight. "One more time."

"I think I won, but it could have gone either way. I hurt him more than he hurt me. He was wrestling and holding on."

Ali, a bombastic, bragging challenger, was a chastened winner. "I'm not gonna duck Joe," he said.

"I'm not gonna be like Foreman. I thought Joe was finished. He surprised me. He was much better than in the first fight."

"I think he deserves another chance. This fight can't be topped by any other fight."

No one in the packed arena and perhaps no one in the vast unseen audience around the world appeared disinclined to dispute it.

It was another great fight between two different types of fighter — the slugger against the master craftsman — but it had a different ending. In the first fight, March 8, 1971, when the two were unbeaten champions, Frazier was the unanimous 15-round winner.

In Monday night's 12-rounder, the two judges gave Ali a wide edge; Tony Castellano 74-1 and Jack Gordon 8-4, while Tony Perez scored it 6-5-1, all for Ali.

A random poll of writers at ringside had it 18-4 for Ali, with one even.

Ali, 32, came out dancing and flicking that long left of his like a serpent's tongue. Frazier, 30, bearded, grunting and snorting like an angry bear, came out flailing away, disdaining any punches thrown his way.

Ali, 212, took the first two rounds handsily, beating a tattoo on Frazier's angry face.

"I'm gonna get you," snarled Frazier in the third. It was a round he won, twice jarring Ali's head back with vicious left hooks and pounding telling blows into Muhammad's midsection.

Ali continued weaving, darting, poking. They seemed to be harmless shots but they landed flush on Frazier's glowering face and they began to take effect.

Ali appeared to win the fourth, fifth and sixth rounds. He was an evasive target. Frazier, 209, swung wildly, connected occasionally, missed often.

In the sixth round, a lip reader could see Frazier snort, "I'm gonna get you." Before he would get the words out, Ali shot a blood red glove flush to his snarling mouth.

Frazier, obviously irked at his failure to drive home a telling or a knockout blow in the early rounds, picked up momentum in the seventh. He danced and taunted Ali, nailed Muhammad with thunderous left hooks.

Frazier fought well in the seventh and eighth, maybe winning both, as Ali showed signs of tiring. Ali became flat-footed. He moved with less agility. He took more punishment and administered less.

In the ninth round, Frazier grinned at Ali and motioned to him, "Come on, let's fight."

Swinging wildly, never giving ground, he brought blood to Ali's nose. He spit some blood from his mouth himself. But Ali hung on, tying him up and pecking away at his foe like a gifted swordsman.

Frazier remained the aggressor. He kept coming forward like an angry bull. He snorted. He puffed. He swung. Ali jabbed, poked, stung his man.

"Float like a butterfly, sting like a bee."

The old Ali adage of strategy was never practiced more skillfully.

Then it was over — Ali by a unanimous decision.

It was a long road back for Ali, who had his crown snatched from him and who was widely abused for his failure to accept the draft and go into the Vietnam war.

Later, when the war became unpopular, Ali's own popularity soared. Many have acclaimed him the world's outstanding sports personality.

UCLA Regains No. 1 Position In Cage Ratings

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

UCLA is back in its customary No. 1 spot in the Associated Press college basketball poll.

The Bruins, who fell into the No. 2 position for the first time in three years last week, reclaimed the top spot by a wide margin today in the wake of Saturday's convincing 94-75 victory over Notre Dame. UCLA, 15-1, picked up 51 to 52 first-place votes from a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters, and piled up 1,038 total points.

The Irish, who snapped the Bruins' record 88-game win streak Jan. 19th with a 71-70 victory and took over the No. 1 position in the poll last week, fell to third this time around. One voter, unconvinced by UCLA's latest victory, gave Notre Dame the remaining first-place ballot.

North Carolina State, 13-1 after beating North Carolina and Purdue, moved up one spot to second. The Wolfpack collected 894 points, as compared to 864 points for the third-place Irish.

North Carolina remained fourth with 668 points. The Tar Heels, 13-2, followed up their loss to North Carolina State with a win over Maryland. Marquette, 16-1 after topping Long Beach State and Chicago-Loyola, was up one place to No. 5 with 565 points.

Maryland, 11-3, dropped one notch to No. 6 after beating Canisius and bowing to North Carolina. Vanderbilt, 14-1, maintained the No. 7 position with victories over Tennessee and Mississippi.

Alabama, 13-2, advanced from No. 9 to No. 8 by virtue of wins over Kentucky, Georgia Tech and Georgia. Providence, 15-2, dropped one spot to No. 9 despite victories over Boston College and Rhode Island. And Long Beach State, 14-2, held onto the No. 10 spot after losing to Marquette and beating California-Irvine and Northern Illinois.

Southern California topped the second ten, followed by Indiana, 12th; Pittsburgh, 13th; South Carolina, 14th; Louisville, 15th; Wisconsin, 16th; New Mexico, 17th; Kansas, 18th; Oral Roberts, 19th; and Michigan, 20th.

White has reportedly informed the club of his desire to return to the West Coast where he grew up. He was an All-American at the University of California.

"I've always been a meat and potatoes man, meaning those big up-front guys. That's all we took for the first five years," said Brown.

"But we've reached the stage now where we can afford to go for the skilled position," said the 65-year-old veteran, now the dean of NFL coaches.

Turmoil Follows TV Failure

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Sheriff's deputies reported several arrests following a near-riot of angry boxing fans after the video portion of a closed circuit telecast of the Ali-Frazier fight failed at Hara Arena Monday night.

Deputies and police from five nearby communities helped bring the situation under control.

Police credited an announcement that ticket money would be refunded and the fact that Muhammad Ali was winning with helping quiet the pro-Ali crowd.

Nat Starks of St. Petersburg, Fla., is the oldest of the 23 golfers who qualified for the PGA tour at the recent PGA school. He will be 34 next June 20. He won the North-South Open in 1965.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of Tommy Michael Hedges, who was killed one year ago today, January 29, 1973. January comes with sad regrets, the day, the month we shall never forget. For in our hearts he will always be loved and remembered every day. The years may wipe out many things, but this they wipe out never. The memory of those happy days, when we were all together. Sadly missed by the David Hedges family and all his friends.

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR WEDNESDAY
ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 20): Partnerships, business, personal life generously influenced. You who take responsibility seriously have grand opportunities now. Be realistic in all things.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 to May 21): Be alert now. Scrutinize all projects before acting. Rule out doubt, fear of failure. You have the know-how.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21): Your Mercury, in excellent position, encourages written matters, communications generally. Give a good account of yourself.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23): Mild influences. Don't rest on past laurels or indulge in day-dreaming. Put forth your best efforts. A good period for encouraging new friendships.

LEO (July 24 to Aug. 23): Give careful attention to all responsibilities and obligations. Haste could result in needless errors. Don't waste time on frivolity.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23): The time and opportunity are here! ACCOMPLISH! You will be happy later that you strived. Don't mind if progress is slow at first. Activities will gather momentum.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23): Step "gingerly," take a sure path, and step up efforts as you learn and become more adept. Do not accept hearsay as gospel. Eyes open!

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 22): Review each plan for originality, method of execution AND follow-up. Astute action can make any sincere endeavor easier, register gains faster.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21): Benefic Jupiter influences continue. Take the optimistic point of view. It will give a fairer picture of situations and fan enthusiasm that translates into fertile ideas, progress.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): What are future plans? Are you headed in the right direction with proper equipment? Alloy worries by astute thinking, concise action.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): This type of day may be the just-right one for you now. Take the initiative where you might lose assets or time. Maintain your dignity, principles, rights.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Neptune presents a quiet picture. Inject a bit of pep into activities, where needed. Incentive can be tailored to meet top requirements.

YOU BORN TODAY are unusually independent, reliable, a striver always—and normally in an intelligent way. You may at times be given to useless ventures, though the whole life's picture of the Aquarian shows so much ability and ceaseless energy that important accomplishment easily outweighs the hapless attempts. You may follow someone else's idea that is not quite right for success and eventually mold it into a workable, highly acceptable one. Birthdate of: Franklin D. Roosevelt, 32nd Pres., U.S.A.; Walter Damrosch, composer, musical director.

ABA Clubs Sale Discussed

NORFOLK, Va (AP) — Reports and rumors persisted that either the Memphis or Virginia franchises — or both — would be sold during the American Basketball Association's break for the 1974 All-Star game, being played Wednesday night at Norfolk's Scope, but Commissioner Mike Storen insisted that neither club was up for discussion at today's Board of Trustees meeting. Despite Storen's emphatic tone, however, owners Earl Foreman of Virginia and Charles Finley of Memphis have said publicly they expect to sell their franchises by Feb. 1.

New Bar Wins Latonia Feature

FLORENCE, Ky. (AP) — New Bar forged in front midway down the stretch to take a two and one-half length victory in the featured race at Latonia Monday night. The winner completed the mile and a sixteenth in 1:46 3-5 to pay $9.00, $4.20 and $3.20. One Wise Step paid $4.20 and $3.40 for second. Jy Kat showed for $4.00. The 6-5 combination of Pootsie Pie and Busboy paid $212.20 in the daily double. A crowd of 4,221 wagered $448,977.

Utah Stars Top Conquistadors

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The Utah Stars gave Coach Joe Mullaney a real professional basketball send-off before he left to coach in the American Basketball Association's All-Star game in Norfolk, Va. It was Monday night's 120-109 defeat of the San Diego Conquistadors. And it was the only pro basketball action in the nation, as most sports fans focused on the Muhammad Ali-Joe Frazier bout.

Views On Television

NEW YORK (AP) — Alexander Scourby set out in the 1930s to be an actor. He still is one. But odds are you'll hear his voice more often on television than you'll actually see him. He's one of New York's leading men, so to speak, in the specialized field of off-camera voice-overs for commercials, his major accounts this year being Excedrin and Chevrolet. He's also done the narration for so many radio and television documentaries over the past 30 years he doesn't even want to guess approximately how many he's done. "I think it's probably in the hundreds, but I don't really know," laughed Scourby, whose latest narrative effort, a documentary called "The Battle for Dominance," airs Thursday night on ABC-TV. It's one of television's many ironies that with all his credits, he's often remembered as the man who narrated NBC's superb "Victory At Sea" documentary series in the 1950s. But Leonard Graves did all the narration for the weekly, half-hour series. Scourby only narrated what he calls "the boiled-down version," which NBC aired as a 90-minute special.

"I never had anything to do with the series and I think it's a great injustice to the poor guy who did it if I get the credit," he said. "He (Graves) did a very good job." Scourby, who has a mellow, resonant voice and casually precise diction that sounds vaguely British at times, a hamlet not exactly known for kindness to the English language. "I don't think I ever had a Brooklyn accent," he insists. "An awful lot of people are born in Brooklyn and don't have a Brooklyn accent. If there was any Flatbush in his speech, his acting classes not only removed it, but, as he observes, 'we came out with speech so pure that we had to 'dirty it up' for radio." How long does it take to narrate a TV documentary? Scourby says it varies with the efficiency of the producer and scriptwriter. True woe is when the written narration runs longer than the film. "Then you've got to spend half a day boiling it down, making cuts, and usually they've written it so compactly that you can't hardly do anything," he said. His idea of narrative heaven is first watching the film footage, then marking spots in the script for inflections and pauses and then sitting down at the microphone. "That way," he said, "you get continuity, a real feeling of telling a story. If it's a stop-go, stop-go, you break the flow."

New England Nips Blazers

BOSTON (AP) — Anytime a hockey team scores five goals in the final period it deserves to win — and that's what the New England Whalers did. "This is a great win and a great comeback," New England Coach Ron Ryan said Monday night after the Whalers rallied for a 6-4 World Hockey Association victory over the Vancouver Blazers.

Your Horoscope Television Schedule

By FRANCIS DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR WEDNESDAY
ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 20): Partnerships, business, personal life generously influenced. You who take responsibility seriously have grand opportunities now. Be realistic in all things.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 to May 21): Be alert now. Scrutinize all projects before acting. Rule out doubt, fear of failure. You have the know-how.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21): Your Mercury, in excellent position, encourages written matters, communications generally. Give a good account of yourself.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23): Mild influences. Don't rest on past laurels or indulge in day-dreaming. Put forth your best efforts. A good period for encouraging new friendships.

LEO (July 24 to Aug. 23): Give careful attention to all responsibilities and obligations. Haste could result in needless errors. Don't waste time on frivolity.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23): The time and opportunity are here! ACCOMPLISH! You will be happy later that you strived. Don't mind if progress is slow at first. Activities will gather momentum.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23): Step "gingerly," take a sure path, and step up efforts as you learn and become more adept. Do not accept hearsay as gospel. Eyes open!

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 22): Review each plan for originality, method of execution AND follow-up. Astute action can make any sincere endeavor easier, register gains faster.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21): Benefic Jupiter influences continue. Take the optimistic point of view. It will give a fairer picture of situations and fan enthusiasm that translates into fertile ideas, progress.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): What are future plans? Are you headed in the right direction with proper equipment? Alloy worries by astute thinking, concise action.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): This type of day may be the just-right one for you now. Take the initiative where you might lose assets or time. Maintain your dignity, principles, rights.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Neptune presents a quiet picture. Inject a bit of pep into activities, where needed. Incentive can be tailored to meet top requirements.

YOU BORN TODAY are unusually independent, reliable, a striver always—and normally in an intelligent way. You may at times be given to useless ventures, though the whole life's picture of the Aquarian shows so much ability and ceaseless energy that important accomplishment easily outweighs the hapless attempts. You may follow someone else's idea that is not quite right for success and eventually mold it into a workable, highly acceptable one. Birthdate of: Franklin D. Roosevelt, 32nd Pres., U.S.A.; Walter Damrosch, composer, musical director.

ABA Clubs Sale Discussed

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Reports and rumors persisted that either the Memphis or Virginia franchises—or both—would be sold during the American Basketball Association's break for the 1974 All-Star game, being played Wednesday night at Norfolk's Scope, but Commissioner Mike Storen insisted that neither club was up for discussion at today's Board of Trustees meeting.

Despite Storen's emphatic tone, however, owners Earl Foreman of Virginia and Charles Finley of Memphis have said publicly they expect to sell their franchises by Feb. 1.

New Bar Wins Latonia Feature

FLORENCE, Ky. (AP) — New Bar forged in front midway down the stretch to take a two and one-half length victory in the featured race at Latonia Monday night.

The winner completed the mile and a sixteenth in 1:46 3-5 to pay $9.00, $4.20 and $3.20. One Wise Step paid $4.20 and $3.40 for second. Jay Kat showed for $4.00.

The 6-5 combination of Pootsie Pie and Busboy paid $212.20 in the daily double.

A crowd of 4,221 wagered $448,977.

Utah Stars Top Conquistadors

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The Utah Stars gave Coach Joe Mullaney a real professional basketball send-off before he left to coach in the American Basketball Association's All-Star game in Norfolk, Va.

It was Monday night's 120-109 defeat of the San Diego Conquistadors.

And it was the only pro basketball action in the nation, as most sports fans focused on the Muhammad Ali-Joe Frazier bout.

Views On Television

NEW YORK (AP) — Alexander Scourby set out in the 1930s to be an actor. He still is one. But odds are you'll hear his voice more often on television than you'll actually see him.

He's one of New York's leading men, so to speak, in the specialized field of off-camera voice-overs for commercials, his major accounts this year being Excedrin and Chevrolet.

He's also done the narration for so many radio and television documentaries over the past 30 years he doesn't even want to guess approximately how many he's done.

"I think it's probably in the hundreds, but I don't really know," laughed Scourby, whose latest narrative effort, a documentary called "The Battle for Dominance," airs Thursday night on ABC-TV.

It's one of television's many ironies that with all his credits, he's often remembered as the man who narrated NBC's superb "Victory At Sea" documentary series in the 1950s.

But Leonard Graves did all the narration for the weekly, half-hour series. Scourby only narrated what he calls "the boiled-down version," which NBC aired as a 90-minute special.

"I never had anything to do with the series and I think it's a great injustice to the poor guy who did it if I get the credit," he said. "He (Graves) did a very good job."

Scourby, who has a mellow, resonant voice and casually precise diction that sounds vaguely British at times, hails from Brooklyn, a hamlet not exactly known for kindness to the English language.

"I don't think I ever had a Brooklyn accent," he insists. "An awful lot of people are born in Brooklyn and don't have a Brooklyn accent."

If there was any Flatbush in his speech, his acting classes not only removed it, but, as he observes, "we came out with speech so pure that we had to 'dirty it up' for radio."

How long does it take to narrate a TV documentary? Scourby says it varies with the efficiency of the producer and scriptwriter. True woe is when the written narration runs longer than the film.

"Then you've got to spend half a day boiling it down, making cuts, and usually they've written it so compactly that you can't hardly do anything," he said.

His idea of narrative heaven is first watching the film footage, then marking spots in the script for inflections and pauses and then sitting down at the microphone.

"That way," he said, "you get continuity, a real feeling of telling a story. If it's a stop-go, stop-go, you break the flow."

New England Nips Blazers

BOSTON (AP) — Anytime a hockey team scores five goals in the final period it deserves to win—and that's what the New England Whalers did.

"This is a great win and a great comeback," New England Coach Ron Ryan said Monday night after the Whalers rallied for a 6-4 World Hockey Association victory over the Vancouver Blazers.

TV Board Agrees To Install Juke Box In Cafeteria

Members of the Student Council at Teays Valley High School met with the board of education Monday evening to discuss the possibility of installing a juke box in the cafeteria. The board authorized the installation of the juke box under the condition the council agree to have it removed if it proved unsatisfactory after a trial period.

The council was also authorized by the board to work with the high school principal, Bill Toney, in conjunction with the installation and operation of the machine. It will only be used during lunch periods.

Other business at hand included board action declaring Forrest Webster unable to perform his duties as special education teacher at this time. Webster was placed on a temporary medical leave of absence until such time as his physician permits him to return to his duties. Clara J. Paulus was named to temporarily replace Webster until his return.

Participation in the Title III and National Defense Act of 1958 was authorized. This program has not been funded for 1½ years but federal funds were recently released to the district. Any purchases made through this fund will require board action and matching funds taken from the general fund account.

Authorization to purchase a transistorized portable language laboratory through this fund was made. After approval is received from the state, the board will seek quotations for the purchase.

Two compactors for the school cafeterias were approved for purchase from the lunchroom fund. Other lunchroom business completed by the board was the assignment of monthly cafeteria reports for the district to Mrs. Lillian Brown, high school secretary and activity account bookkeeper. This duty was formerly placed with the clerk-treasurer of the board.

A request for reimbursement from the State of Ohio in the amount of 50 per cent for the purchase of a dynamometer for the vocational agriculture department was authorized. The dynamometer will be used to measure horsepower and torque revolutions for engines used in that department. Under the Vocational Education Act of 1963, the district may be reimbursed 50 per cent of the purchase price for equipment used in the vocational agriculture department.

A number of professional leaves were granted to staff members including: Miss Darlene Freeman and Mrs. Elizabeth Dunkle to attend the Ohio Music Association Convention in Columbus, Feb. 7-9; Larry Kirk, Dennis Diehn, Charles Thomas and Dennis Smith to attend the Industrial Arts Convention in Columbus, March 14-15; William Lewis and Roger Campbell to attend the Ohio High School Athletic Association Baseball Clinic, Columbus, Feb. 8; Mrs. Frances Labuda, Central Ohio Counselor Aide Workshop, Columbus, Jan. 29; Delmer Dodrill and William Lewis, Regional Drug, Alcohol and Tobacco Workshop for Grades 7-12, Columbus, Feb. 6-7; Robert Gregory, David Barnett and Lee Tharp, Elementary Principals Conference, Columbus, Feb. 7-9. Bill Toney and Howard Weaver were appointed to serve on the evaluation team for the North central Evaluation at Greenfield High School on Feb. 6 and 7.

The supplemental substitute teacher list as submitted by the county board of education was approved by the local board.

A resolution to consider the purchase of a gas pump at the high school site was passed. The pump will have a key and metering system which will have 24 different keys and 24 different meters. Accurate records may be kept with this type pump on the gasoline use of each bus.

After considering and reviewing bus body and chassis bids, the board decided to purchase three 1974 model, 66-passenger buses with the International chassis and the Superior body from the H and S Service. The transaction will be made through E. H. Davis and Sons in Newark.

Sealed bids were also considered on the three used welders which were advertised by the board. All three welders sold to the highest bidder, Glenn Parsons. He paid $42.50 for two of the portable electric welders and $51.50 for the third.

The board discussed without action several items including the north end sewer under construction, the proposed annex to the village and the water line situation at Walnut Elementary School.

Board members determined that bids should be sought on replacement of old windows in each of the three elementary school buildings and placed the assistant superintendent and the elementary school principals in charge of developing priorities for summer painting and repairs. They will seek quotations for the paint contracts.

The appropriation measure was adopted as permanent since the state auditor's certificate has been received.

A resolution was passed requesting the Superintendent of Public Instruction permission for claiming Jan. 10 as a day of calamity due to icy roads and also to approve dismissal of the junior high students on Jan. 3 and 11 for the same reason.

The board commended Roger Patterson for having been named by the Pickaway County Jaycees as the outstanding young educator for 1974.

A final resolution authorized the payment of David Barnett, principal at the Walnut Elementary School, for an outside activity.

Each of the principals reported to the board regarding matters pertinent to their respective buildings. The board concluded with a discussion of the proposed county-wide calendar for the school year 1974-75. No changes or substitute calendar was proposed by the board although they have not yet approved the presented calendar.

The next meeting of the board will be a special meeting of Feb. 18 for the purpose of discussing a bond issue proposal for the November ballot. The next regularly scheduled meeting is planned for Feb. 25.

Y INDIAN GUIDE PAPER DRIVE

Nineteen tons of paper and magazines were collected Saturday and Sunday by the Y Indian Guides and Princesses. The "Save A Tree" program was so successful that plans for quarterly paper drives are now being considered by the Longhouse Officers.

A special thanks is extended to all Pickaway County residents for their help in making this first "Save A Tree" Drive such a huge success. Proceeds for the Saturday and Sunday Y-Parent-Child program will be used for Longhouse Indian Costumes, sports and camping equipment, and meeting camp-out and program expenses of the Y Guides and Princesses.

Fathers and Sons, and Fathers and Daughters, ages 6 to 9 interested in a program where you do many things together, such as the recent paper drive, are encouraged to join one of the eleven Indian Guide or the two Indian-Princess clubs.

Abortion Law Being Rewritten

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A Senate Judiciary subcommittee today begins the task of rewriting a House-passed abortion bill that opponents contend would be unconstitutional.

The subcommittee chairman, Sen. Robert J. Corts, R-13 Elyria, said he wants Ohio's abortion law to be "as tight as possible."

Since recent court decisions, Ohio has had no abortion laws. The old law permitted the procedure only if the mother's life was in danger.

The House bill, sponsored by Rep. Arthur Wilkowski, D-46 Toledo, would allow abortions under certain circumstances through the first six months of pregnancy and would set up strict regulations as to how they are performed.

Opponents contend it is more restrictive than the old law and said physicians would refuse to perform them because of a section making them liable for civil and criminal lawsuits.

The three-member subcommittee will begin work on the bill after the 1:30 p.m. floor session of both houses that will open the General Assembly's activities for the week.

Corts said two witnesses who did not get a chance to testify before the full committee earlier will be allowed to present their arguments before the subcommittee begins re-drafting.

Corts said he hasn't been too bothered by lawyers' arguments that the proposed bill would be unconstitutional. "It is up to a court to say what is unconstitutional," he said.

The chairman of the full committee, Sen. Paul E. Gillmor, R-2 Port Clinton, said he wants a bill that will give Ohio some type of abortion control but still withstand a court test.

Meanwhile, the Equal Rights Amendment to the U.S. Constitution which came out of Senate committee faces at least another week of delay before a floor vote.

Senate Majority Leader Theodore M. Gray, R-4 Columbus, said last week

Ad For Toys Under Fire

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — The Cleveland Office of Consumer Affairs has ruled that a misleading pre-Christmas advertisement for Uncle Bill's stores was the result of an accident and was not done to deceive the public.

The advertisement, which appeared in a local newspaper, led buyers to believe that all the toys in the store were on sale when only the ones pictured in the advertisement were discounted.

Uncle Bill's ran that same ad in a number of other cities that same day," said Barbara Gibbo's, consumer investigator. "The Cleveland ad was the only one that contained language which could be interpreted as implying a half-price toy clearance. We are convinced the technical violation was not intentional."

She said that Uncle Bill's has volunteered to permit the 12 consumers who filed formal complaints with the office a chance to purchase up to $200 worth of toys at half price.

Each of the principals reported to the board regarding matters pertinent to their respective buildings. The board concluded with a discussion of the proposed county-wide calendar for the school year 1974-75. No changes or substitute calendar was proposed by the board although they have not yet approved the presented calendar.

The next meeting of the board will be a special meeting of Feb. 18 for the purpose of discussing a bond issue proposal for the November ballot. The next regularly scheduled meeting is planned for Feb. 25.

INDIAN GUIDE PAPER DRIVE
Nineteen tons of paper and magazines were collected Saturday and Sunday by the Y Indian Guides and Princesses. The "Save A Tree" program was so successful that plans for quarterly paper drives are now being considered by the Longhouse Officers.

A special thanks is extended to all Pickaway County residents for their help in making this first "Save A Tree" Drive such a huge success. Proceeds for the Saturday and Sunday Y-Parent-Child program will be used for Longhouse Indian Costumes, sports and camping equipment, and meeting camp-out and program expenses of the Y Guides and Princesses.

Fathers and Sons, and Fathers and Daughters, ages 6 to 9 interested in a program where you do many things together, such as the recent paper drive, are encouraged to join one of the eleven Indian Guide or the two Indian-Princess clubs.

Abortion Law Being Rewritten

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A Senate Judiciary subcommittee today begins the task of rewriting a House-passed abortion bill that opponents contend would be unconstitutional.

The subcommittee chairman, Sen. Robert J. Corts, R-13 Elyria, said he wants Ohio's abortion law to be "as tight as possible."

Since recent court decisions, Ohio has had no abortion laws. The old law permitted the procedure only if the mother's life was in danger.

The House bill, sponsored by Rep. Arthur Wilkowski, D-46 Toledo, would allow abortions under certain circumstances through the first six months of pregnancy and would set up strict regulations as to how they are performed.

Opponents contend it is more restrictive than the old law and said physicians would refuse to perform them because of a section making them liable for civil and criminal lawsuits.

The three-member subcommittee will begin work on the bill after the 1:30 p.m. floor session of both houses that will open the General Assembly's activities for the week.

Corts said two witnesses who did not get a chance to testify before the full committee earlier will be allowed to present their arguments before the subcommittee begins re-drafting.

Corts said he hasn't been too bothered by lawyers' arguments that the proposed bill would be unconstitutional. "It is up to a court to say what is unconstitutional," he said.

The chairman of the full committee, Sen. Paul E. Gillmor, R-2 Port Clinton, said he wants a bill that will give Ohio some type of abortion control but still withstand a court test.

Meanwhile, the Equal Rights Amendment to the U.S. Constitution which came out of Senate committee faces at least another week of delay before a floor vote.

Senate Majority Leader Theodore M. Gray, R-4 Columbus, said last week it would be "two or three weeks" before a vote but supporters have been optimistic it could come sooner.

Five minor bills are up for a floor vote when the legislature reconvenes, two in the Senate and three in the House.
